Nearby parks asked to support track annex bid

by DIANE MERMIGAS

The Arlington Heights Park Board is seeking support from two neighboring park districts in an effort to annex the Arlington Park Race Track.

The park board plans to meet with representatives of the Palatine and Rolling Meadows park districts to discuss disconnecting the race track from the Salt Creek Rural Park District and annexing it to the Arlington Heights Park District.

Salt Creek Park District officials have filed written protests to the threatened loss of its main source of revenue — about $40,000 a year.

The Salt Creek Park District, which lies in all three municipalities, would be divided among the three park districts if the race track is annexed to the Arlington Heights Park District.

PARK BOARD representatives from the Palatine and Rolling Meadows park districts have said they support efforts of the Arlington Heights Park District to annex the race track and would welcome the additional land and residents from the Salt Creek Park District.

Lloyd Meyer, Arlington Heights Park Board president, said the board "wants to make certain of the support from these two nearby park districts. If they are also interested in dissolving the Salt Creek Park District, as they seemed to be several years ago, then we can count on their support."

Representatives of the Arlington Heights, Palatine and Rolling Meadows park boards agreed in 1969 that the Salt Creek Park District should be dissolved and divided among them for "the benefit of all," said Thomas Thornton, park district director.

The Arlington Heights Park Board may request officials of the other two park districts to send letters of support to Arlington Heights village officials or to attend a village board meeting Sept. 8 to voice their approval of the annexation, he said.

"WE ARE GRATEFUL to the village of Arlington Heights for the consideration they are giving us. We feel that any support we can get from other park districts will help us succeed in annexing the race track," Meyer said.

Meyer said he would encourage Salt Creek Park District officials to attend the joint park district meeting when it is set up this week "to make their feelings known."

The Arlington Heights village officials have also requested that the Salt Creek Park District officials speak in the proposed race track annexation at the Sept. 8 meeting.

Henry Deihl, Salt Creek Park Board president, said he and other park district officials plan to meet with the Arlington Heights Village Board on the proposed annexation.

SALT CREEK officials would like to meet with representatives of the other park districts but have not heard from them yet on the meeting, he said.

"We're not pleased that everybody is coming in and interfering with our tranquility. Our people are satisfied with the programs and we have the lowest tax rate of the surrounding districts," he said.

Deihl said a letter was recently sent to surrounding park districts indicating "we do intend to stay a viable park district."

"I hope they understand they're causing problems when we're trying to get prepared for a referendum. This could interfere with our plans and could be a cause for litigation," Deihl said.

THE SALT CREEK Park Board plans a referendum on a proposed tennis and pool complex at Lake Irene near Ill. Rt. 53 and Northwest Highway as soon as the Metropolitan Sanitary District gives approval. The MSD is in the process of buying the lake and surrounding property for water retention as part of the Salt Creek Water Shed Project.

The race track provides at least one-third of the park district's yearly $135,000 in revenue.

Madison Square Garden Corp., to agree to move the facility from owners of the race track, would have one park district to another under state law.

In the past, William Moore, attorney for Madison Square Garden, has objected to disconnecting the race track from the Salt Creek Park District, labeling the move "an act of piracy."

School signups to begin Monday

Stcdents in Prospect Heights Dist. 23 may register Monday through Aug. 29 from 9 a.m. to noon at each of the district's five schools.

Students should register at the schools they will attend and be prepared to pay book rental fees. Fees are $3 for kindergarteners, $12 for grades one through six and $10 for junior high students. School insurance will be available for those who wish to take it.

School begins Sept. 2.

EVEN OUT OF costume, Star Trek fans will recognize Mr. Spock, Ensign Sulu and Ensign Chekov. Heroes of the one-time hit television show, known out of uniform as, l. to r., Leonard Nimoy, George Takei and Walter Koenig, were on hand Friday for the opening of the Star Trek Convention Chicago where more than 9,000 "Trekkies," as the show's fans are called, came out to pay homage to their favorite show.

'To the bridge, Spock, Trekkies are attacking'

NICHELLE NICHOLS, who played Lt. Uhuru on the television show Star Trek, addresses the convention.

by TOM VON MALDER

Fierce, weapon-carrying Klingons marched through hallways while dealers sold cuddly Tribbles to starry-eyed Trekkies.

Famous scientists and authors discussed writing or criticized television, while actors from the Star Trek television series met their fans from a life-size replica of the bridge of the Starship Enterprise.

It was all part of the excitement Friday at Chicagoland's first Star Trek convention. More than 9,000 fans, Trekkies and science fiction lovers of all ages attended the opening of the three-day convention at the Conrad Hilton hotel.

Star Trek has been off network television since 1968, but through syndication (including Channel 9 locally) it has found a new generation of fans, every bit as loyal as those who originally tried to keep the show on television.

"We have initiated new loyalties since the show has been off," sait Walter Koenig, who played Ensign Chekov in the series. Koenig added that he believed the ratings were accurate seven years ago, and the show probably deserved to be taken off.

"Call me disloyal, but that's what I believe," Koenig said.

Koenig said he feels the show would do much better on television today. The thought of about six 90-minute shows a year appeals to him, he said.

LEONARD NIMOY, who played the logical, alien Mr. Spock, said Star Trek failed because of its time slots.

"The mistake was in scheduling — an honest, maybe stupid mistake. They moved us from a mediocre spot to a bad spot to a worse spot," Nimoy said.

Most Trekkies wonder if the show will ever get back on television, or if there will be a movie. Nimoy said Star Trek creator Gene Roddenberry wrote a script for a movie which was rejected. A second writer is expected to be brought in to write the tale, which would take place two years after the Enterprise's original five-year mission had ended.

The show's stars and fans seem to share an equal love of the series. The fans' faces shine as they meet the stars and the actors "love it," as James Doohan said. Doohan, who played Engineer Scott, said, "We go to bed exhausted, completely emotionally drained after meeting the fans."

Saturday

THE STAR TREK convention phenomenon arose from the older, less fanatic science fiction conventions. The SF conventions are typically smaller, however, some 15,000 fans, at $20 each for the weekend, are expected to attend this convention.

One convention highlights will be the costume contest tonight, although many Trekkies were in costume Friday as they attended the various lectures and screenings of science fiction films. All 79 Star Trek episodes also are being shown.

Security guards, dressed as Klingons (the "bad guys" of interspace), hustle the celebrities from one appearance to another with a minimum hassle. The tribbles being sold are copies of the little furry-ball creatures that wreaked havoc in one episode when they reproduced faster than rabbits.

The convention was organized by Lisa Boynton, a 35-year-old tax accountant who says Star Trek is special because "it offered us an alternative to our present world."

There is a strong sense of moral right and wrong in addition to adventure she said, adding the starship crew offers "a microcosm of humanity" with people of different races working together.

AT THE SAME time the world of Star Trek's "star date" science fiction often was a theater for social comment, with episodes confronting contemporary issues like race relations, the Vietnam War and even Communism versus democracy.

But even in an unearthly setting of atom-disassembling "transporters," travel at the speed of light, "phaser" weapons which could disintegrate matter in seconds and super-nuclear power, Capt. James T. Kirk and crew still could manage a touch of humor and simplicity.

There were,for example, those moments when his human half got the better of unemotional Mr. Spock — to the delight of Kirk and company. And even though the medical field had conquered most of the dread killers, and he couldn't cure the common cold. Dr. McCoy was still just "Bones" —

Dist. 59 strike vote possible next week

by JUDY JOBBITT

A strike vote may be taken by the Elk Grove Township Dist. 59 Teachers' Council Friday depending on the outcome of this week's negotiating sessions.

Salary increases and a reduction-in-force clause are the main issues. The district is one of 70 listed as being "critical" by the Illinois Education Assn., a statewide teachers' union. The contract is not expected to be completed before school starts Sept. 2, and teachers will meet Friday to decide whether they will go to work without a contract.

"Our two big things are wages and the layoff clause," said Toni Kane, chief negotiator for the teachers' council. She said the school board has said it wants to retain the right to decide how to lay off tenured teachers once nontenured teachers are laid off.

"We want guarantees in the contract," she said. The district's declining enrollment means tenured teachers will be laid off in the near future, she said, and teachers want a clause spelling out the procedure to be used.

AT WEDNESDAY'S negotiation meeting, the board asked that both sides withdraw their proposals and only negotiate money, she said. The board also proposed a 2 per cent cost-of-living increase she said. This would be in addition to the raise teachers would receive for an additional year's experience.

Mrs. Kane said the teachers refused this offer, which would have stopped negotiations on everything except the salary schedule.

SHE SAID the district's financial figures and salary proposal won't be accepted until the teachers do their own analysis.

"We weren't ready to agree with their picture of the financial problems," said Mrs. Kane. The district's projected a $1.67 million deficit in the building and education funds this year. "We want to do our own analysis."

The board agreed to meet with the teachers Monday to begin negotiations except sections involving money. Items that involve money are expected to be negotiated starting Wednesday, Mrs. Kane said.

Circus must turn in financial books

A County Circuit Court judge has ordered the owners of a circus to turn over all financial records connected with two recent performances in Schaumburg. Illinois Atty. Gen. William I. Scott has charged that the Carson and Barnes Circus forced the Schaumburg Lions Club into an illegal contract that did not give the club at least 75 per cent of the gross receipts. A hearing on Scott's lawsuit, which seeks to recover more funds for the club, is set for Sept. 22.

Downtown beauty plan backed

Mount Prospect officials are making progress on a project that may bring trees, landscaping and a courtyard atmosphere to a parking area near the Mount Prospect State Bank. Robert Bennett, chairman of the village's downtown commission, said merchants have responded well. Village Mgr. Robert J. Eppley said some parking spaces may be lost because of the beautification project, but added the beautification would be worth the loss. Bennett said the commission plans to develop more details before any commitment is asked.

Support sought in annex bid

Arlington Heights Park District officials will meet next week with representatives of the two other park districts in an effort to woo support for annexation of Arlington Park Race Track into their district. The meeting with officials from Palatine and Rolling Meadows park districts is planned to show that the districts would gain if the annexation were allowed. Salt Creek Park District officials have filed formal objections to the move, claiming if the race track were disannexed from their district a major source of revenue would be lost.

Dow jumps 13.07 in slow trading

NEW YORK (UPI) — An oversold stock market, aided by bargain hunters, snapped a four-session losing streak Friday with its best rally in more than a month on the New York Stock Exchange.

But analysts said the rise was not particularly significant because trading was slow.

The Dow Jones industrial average, a 33.95-point loser the previous four sessions, climbed 13.07 points to 804.76, the best gain since a 14.08 jump July 9. For the week, however, the average lost 20.88 points.

Most analysts, noting the Dow's drop this week, said bargain hunters concentrated on blue chips and glamors. The action showed in other averages also.

Standard & Poor's 500-stock index gained 1.21 to 84.28. The average price of an NYSE common share increased 41 cents. Advances topped declines, 990 to 381, among the 1,754 issues crossing the tape.

Volume totaled only 13,050,000 shares, however, down from the 16,610,000 traded Thursday.

SOME SHORT covering — replacing borrowed shares sold earlier — and bargain hunting propped up many glamors and blue chips. But analysts were discouraged by the NYSE report Thursday that short interest fell sharply in the latest reporting month, indicating the market did not have a strong base.

Superior Oil, one of the most volatile of all Big Board stocks, plunged 15 points to 184 on 6,200 shares.

Travelers Corp. led the Big Board actives, up ¾ to 22¾ on 228,600 shares, including a block of 211,800 shares at 22. Texaco followed, unchanged at 23¾, on 160,500 shares. Sony Corp. was third, unchanged at 10¼ on 149,700 shares.

RETAIL ISSUES were among the strongest. J.C. Penney gained 33¼ to 48¼. Sears, Roebuck, Marcor, May department stores and Federated Department Stores gained a point or more each.

Prices closed higher in moderate trading on the American Stock Exchange. The average price of an Amex share gained nine cents. Volume totaled 1,500,000 shares, compared with 1,810,000 traded Thursday.

Costs cause transit woes for elderly

Regional Transportation Authority board members agree the Chicago area has not done enough to help handicapped and elderly persons use public transportation, but they cite high costs as a serious obstacle.

The board discussed the issue at a special meeting Friday and considered possible RTA action in conjunction with federal guidelines expected to be issued this fall.

Jud Lawrie of the Chicago Transit Authority research staff said the area has three alternatives: make all existing systems completely accessible through ramps, elevators and other equipment; develop a completely separate service with its own buses and equipment; or use a combination of the two programs.

ALL PROPOSALS are expensive, Lawrie said, "and it must be realized that accessibility is a very long-term thing."

Federal regulations are expected soon from the Urban Mass Transportation Administration, Lawrie said, and similar legislation has been introduced in Congress. Either way, the Chicago area agencies will have to provide handicapped and elderly services or forego federal grants for transit operations.

The RTA already has applied for $50.5 million in operating subsidies to be used on the CTA and the suburban systems.

RTA Chairman Milton Pikarsky said Chicago has several programs in the works, and an existing reduced fare for elderly persons.

A small dial-a-ride system soon will be operated as a test project in the Chicago area, Lawrie said.

THE RTA AND other Chicago agencies have been charged with failing to work toward meeting the needs of the handicapped and elderly and there are the defendants in the newest of a series of suits against major cities in the United States.

RTA board members said the RTA will be responsible for coordinating or assisting in programs for the elderly and handicapped, but the funding will have to come from federal and local sources.

Lawrie said the cost of rebuilding buses to include ramps or hydraulic lifts could be prohibitive, but all new equipment may have to have some kind of aid for the handicapped and elderly.

SUSAN FORD (l.) and Kay Anderson, a friend, pause for a moment on the streets of Vail Friday after eating lunch with Betty Ford.

Working trip ends Sunday for the Fords

by United Press International

President Ford mixed more pleasure with work Friday as he neared the end of his 15-day working vacation. He took a tennis lesson in the early morning and played a couple sets before returning to his house for meetings with several advisers and speech writers before heading out to a private golf course for his 10th round in 12 days.

The President plans to leave Vail, Colo., Sunday to fly to Montana where he will speak on the energy situation and throw a switch starting a hydroelectric project powered by the Libby Dam.

Press. Sec. Ron Nessen said Canadian energy minister Donald S. Macdonald would participate in the ceremonies and that the two leaders would have time for some brief private discussions that could deal with Canada's decision to phase out oil exports to the United States by 1983.

He said the Ford-Macdonald discussions also could involve possible construction of a natural gas pipeline across Canada to bring the gas from Alaska down to the rest of the nation. But he said he expected no major decisions after that session.

First Lady Betty Ford is writing a reply to those who have written her about the candid views she has expressed about her personal life in recent interviews, her press secretary said.

Telephone calls and telegrams poured in after Mrs. Ford said she "wouldn't be surprised" if her daughter Susan, 18, had an affair.

PRESIDENT FORD recovers from a game of tennis Friday at his moutain resort. Ford also played a round of golf.

In the current issue of McCall's magazine, Mrs. Ford said she sleeps with her husband "as often as possible" and spoke frankly of her private life.

Sheila Rabb Widenfeld, the First Lady's press secretary, said Mrs. Ford is drafting a response to answer the flood of mail she has received, both pro and con.

The First Lady has made more headlines than the President during their vacation at Vail. She also has been reading, sunning, and lunching with her friends.

Syria, Jordan may stymie accord

Mideast progress made: Kissinger

by United Press International

Sec. of State Henry A. Kissinger, fresh from talks in Israel, threw his arms around Egypt's President Anwar Sadat Friday and said progress was being made toward a new Israeli-Egyptian peace pact designed to thwart a new Middle East war.

On the first day of his latest diplomatic shuttle, Kissinger spent five hours conferring in Jerusalem with Israeli Prime Minister Yitzhak Rabin and then flew to Sadat's summer capital on the Mediterranean.

Two of Egypt's Arab partners, Syria and Jordan, meanwhile, announced the formation of a joint military command and rejected any partial peace settlement with Israel, severely jolting Kissinger's shuttle mission.

Kissinger plans to visit both countries in the next few days and is expected to seek clarifications on the joint declaration.

Sadat and Kissinger embraced each other warmly, their heads touching cheeks in a greeting as old as this city of Alexander the Great.

"I am hopeful," Kissinger said. "I have the impression there is a gap but it is narrowing."

The two met for two hours and 45 minutes and afterwards the Egyptian president said there had been "some progress, but some problems remain."

Kissinger is expected to meet with Egyptian Foreign Minister Ismael Fahmi today and again with Sadat Sunday.

From Jerusalem he brought Rabin's terms for a pact Kissinger sees as the cornerstone of a Middle East peace. Some differences remained but Kissinger was urging both sides closer to agreement.

Kissinger said the gap was narrower than in March when his attempt to push through an agreement failed.

"I think this time we are starting with the gap much narrower than it turned out to be the last time," he said.

Kissinger and Israeli leaders described the atmosphere at the Jerusalem talks as "friendly" despite two days of violent demonstrations by right-wing groups opposing a settlement.

Israeli government sources said Friday the proposed peace pact contained a pledge from the United States to come to the aid of Israel in the event of an attack by major world power such as the Soviet Union.

They said, however, that the pledge was "not an automatic decision but a decision to go into consultations on the form of the aid. It is not a defense pact."

U.S. officials said Kissinger would fly to Damascus today for talks with Syrian leaders before making a second Jerusalem visit tonight.

Monday, he is expected to fly via Cairo to Saudi Arabia. A visit to Jordan also was set up but no date was announced. Kissinger also planned at least one more trip to Jerusalem and a minimum of one more hop to Alexandria.

The Lebanese news journal An Nahar Arab Report said Friday Kissinger may try to get negotiations going for a disengagement in the Golan Heights between Israel and Syria within two months if he succeeds in negotiating a Sinai settlement.

Ingredients of the Kissinger plan include an Israeli military pullback in the Sinai desert; the return of the Mitla and Gidi Passes and the Abu Rudeis oil fields to Egypt; the presence of 100 to 200 Americans at early warning stations in the Sinai; and billions of dollars in U.S. aid to Israel.

ISRAELI FOREIGN MINISTER Yigal Allon gestures for silence as Sec. of State Henry A. Kissinger prepares to deliver a message. Kissinger left Israel for more summit talks in Egypt.

Plan set for energy research body

WASHINGTON (UPI) — The administration has drawn up tentative plans to create a quasi-public corporation that would funnel $100 billion into projects designed to eliminate U.S. dependence on foreign energy sources, it was learned Friday.

Administration sources said the proposed agency, called the Energy Resources Finance Corp., would be funded by the Treasury Dept. They said it would be an independent body exempt from taxation, annual congressional review and Civil Service regulations.

"This corporation is intended to finance the development of new energy sources and then go out of business," one source said. He said the corporation might need to exist for about 10 years.

A rough outline of the plan was presented to President Ford two weeks ago by Vice President Nelson Rockefeller, sources said. They said the plan has since been "fleshed out" at Ford's instructions.

At Vail, Colo., White House Press Sec. Ron Nessen confirmed Ford had reviewed the plan. He said the President would decide whether to adopt it after he returns to Washington Tuesday.

Nessen said, however, the unusual finance corporation proposal was only one of several ideas under consideration for assuring development of the new energy sources needed to free the United States from its dependence on foreign oil.

Sources said the proposed corporation would provide capital to private and public organizations to develop promising new energy supplies. They said the parent organization could set up its own wholly owned subsidiary corporations to "produce, acquire, carry, sell or otherwise deal in energy-related commodities and materials."

Nessen indicated funding for new energy development might involve the floating of bonds rather than direct federal financing. He said the president asked his aides to come up with "more specific ideas" that he could look over after his return to Washington.

Also Friday, Alan Greenspan, chairman of the President's Council of Economic Advisers, said July's 1.2 per cent jump in the cost of living did not signal the start of a new era of double-digit inflation. He said his information for August, including food and gasoline prices, indicates the rate of inflation will drop.

Also, Defense Sec. James R. Schlesinger left Friday for official visits to South Korea and Japan to discuss problems of mutual security.

Schlesinger said he would visit South Korean President Park Chung-Hee and Japanese Prime Minister Takeo Miki.

Fighting erupts in Portuguese Asian colony

MACAO (UPI) — Fierce new fighting was reported between rival political factions Friday in civil warfare raging in Portuguese Timor. Australia sent warships to the Asian colony to organize a sea evacuation of some 1,000 whites.

Radio reports received at this Portuguese enclave on the China mainland said at least five persons had been killed in fighting in Dili, capital of Portuguese Timor.

A communique from Dili, relayed by the only existing radio link to Macao, said 30 persons were injured in the latest battle and several houses were burned down. It said the casualties probably were higher but a full count was impossible.

Dili was without water and electric power, and refrigerated food supplies were decaying in the capital where Portugal's effective control dwindled to a tiny neutral area near the harbor. Even the government-run hospital was without power.

Timor, under Portuguese administration since 1585, has been the scene of a power struggle among three parties for 11 days after the Democratic Union, which favors continued links with Portugal, seized key positions in and around the capital.

The move was aimed at stopping the Revolutionary Front for Independent East Timor — Fretelin, a Marxist party which seeks outright independence — from seizing control of the territory.

A third movement, Apodeti, wants to integrate the colony with neighboring Indonesia but as far as is known has not been involved in the fighting.

The latest gun battle was between supporters of the Democratic Union and Fretelin, the communique said.

LISBON (UPI) — Communists fired into a hostile crowd in northern Portugal Friday and a bomb wrecked a government radio transmitter on the Atlantic island of Madeira. In Lisbon, pro-Communist Prime Minister Vasco Goncalves mounted a new offensive to hang onto power.

Political informants said Goncalves warned the ruling military that Portugal faced the alternative of keeping his government in office or risking a military coup.

In the northern city of Braganza, Communists fired with shotguns into a crowd gathered outside after a small bomb exploded in the local Communist party headquarters.

Police said the shots wounded four or five persons, two critically. Police had to evacuate the Communists who were attacked by the crowd as they ran for the protection to a local military base. The crowd then ransacked the building and turned its contents into a street bonfire. The Braganza hospital said at least eight persons were injured in the violence.

On the Portuguese island of Madeira, 600 miles southwest of Lisbon, a bomb wrecked the local radio transmitter. A spokesman for the state-run radio and television service said no one was hurt.

Officials speculated the bomb might have been set off by separatists who want independence for Madeira. A similar independence movement in the Azores, another Portuguese island group further west in the Atlantic, has been increasingly active in recent weeks.

Political informants said Premier Goncalves delivered his warning of a possible coup shortly before holding what was billed as a crucial meeting of his cabinet. Government officials said the cabinet approved yet another left-leaning program designed to rescue the country from its drawn-out political and economic crisis.

All signs indicated an approaching showdown between Goncalves backed by his Communist supporters, the moderates in the armed forces, and the extreme leftists led by military security chief Gen. Otelo Saraiva de Carvalho.

George Lincoln Rockwell's assassin granted parole

• The ambush killer of American Nazi party leader George Lincoln Rockwell Friday became the first major political slayer of the 1960s — America's "Decade of Assassination" — to be freed. The State of Virginia paroled John Patler from the Pulaski Correctional Unit in Southwest Virginia. He had served eight years of a 20-year sentence for the Aug. 25, 1967, shooting of Rockwell at a shopping center where the self-styled American "Fuhrer" was washing his clothes at a laundromat. "He was a model inmate," said H. L. Underwood, superintendent of the Pulaski State Prison where Patler served his last year. "He never caused any problems. He spent most of his time studying art and drawing."

• Elvis Presley "does not have any serious or life-threatening illness," but tests will be made to find out why he became so exhausted he had to cancel his Las Vegas engagement after three days, the singer's doctor said Friday. The 40-year-old superstar — a teenage idol in the 1950s — canceled a two-week engagement in Las Vegas and flew home to Memphis Thursday, accompanied by Dr. George Nichopoulos, and entered Baptist Hospital. "The primary problem at this point is fatigue," Nichopoulos said Friday.

People

• Prime Minister Yitzhak Rabin's wife, Leah, did more than preside as hostess for the Thursday night dinner for U.S. Sec. of State and Mrs. Henry A. Kissinger. She spent the afternoon cooking the cheese blintzes which the guests munched.

Ask Andy

Seedless fruit — best of 2 trees

Andy sends a complete 20-volume set of the Merit Students Encyclopedia to Robert Suitto, age 10, of Schenectady, N.Y., for his question:

HOW DO WE GET NEW TREES FROM NAVAL ORANGES?

The world is facing shortages of human food supplies. This is sad, but sensible folk refuse to sit down and cry about it. Instead, those who have a back yard or even a flower pot get busy and strive to grow some for themselves. Aside from leaving more store-bought food for others, these fascinating projects tempt us to explore other mysteries of the plant world. Oranges, of course, cannot survive the cool winters in New York. But your splendid apples and peaches do not sprout from seeds or pits, either.

Nowadays we take our wide variety of delicious fruits for granted. But all of them started out as scraggly wild trees, bearing sour little fruits or berries. They were pampered, coddled and improved by countless generations of patient gardeners. And the most important discovery was a clever device called grafting.

A seedling from an orange or apple bears the same sour little fruits of its ancestors. Lnng ago some unknown genius made a fantastic discovery. A twig from one tree can be grafted to grow from the stem of another tree of a similar type. The two-in-one tree keeps the root system from the old stem — and its boughs produce the sort of fruit on the tree from which the twig was taken.

Meantime, better orchard trees were selected and improved. But often the seedlings reverted to wild ancestors and often the pampered root systems were weak. Both problems are solved by grafting. A sturdy ancestral type is selected to provide the stock, or root system. It is cut down to a few inches above the ground.

A twig, or scion, is taken from the tree that bears lush oranges or some other fruit. It is grafted to provide the trunk and boughs, which bear superior-type fruit.

Grafting works because growth occurs in a slim layer of cells below the bark. When properly sliced and sealed in place, these special cells grow together and merge to create the two-in-one tree. Seedless oranges and most other orchard trees inherit sturdy root systems from wild-type ancestors, plus boughs that bear fruit just like the pampered types.

Andy sends a seven-volume set of the Chronicles of Narnia to Kathy Costello, age 14, of Eveleth, Minn., for her question:

DOES A GIRAFFE HAVE A VOICE?

Rarely does the giraffe have a word to say for himself, at least not one we can hear. Some observers claim that various members of the family sometimes utter a few sounds. For example, on rare occasions an adult male may utter a gruff grunt or a husky cough. The female may say something that sounds like wha-ray — while a junior giraffe conversation is so rare that patient zookeepers hardly ever hear it.

A giraffe has an extra-large voice box which seems to be in fine working order. This is why his almost complete silence seems so strange. Some experts suspect that this is not the whole story. Perhaps the tall fellow uses his super voice box to utter supersonic sound beyond the range of human hearing ability. This may be true, but so far the theory has not been proved. All we have heard from the giraffe family are a few grunts and bleats.

There's confusion on heart block

Would you please explain to me what heart block is? Where it can occur and what causes it? I have a friend with this problem and don't know whether it is serious or not.

The doctor says
by Lawrence E. Lamb

There is a lot of confusion about heart block, because there are several different kinds and all can be caused by several different medical conditions.

You can have a block in the special nerve-like conduction to either the right or left side of the heart. These are classified as right or left bundle branch block depending on which is involved. The right bundle branch block is more common and may occur in young, healthy people without any other indication of heart trouble.

Both right and left bundle branch block can be caused by an old inflammation of the heart with a childhood disease or from such serious problems as a recent heart attack.

The treatment of right or left bundle branch block depends on what causes it. When found in a young, apparently healthy person, there is nothing to do. If it is from an acute heart attack the job is to treat the heart attack. When it develops from inflammation of the heart in a child with rheumatic fever, the job is to treat the rheumatic fever. So really, you don't treat right or left bundle brach block, but the condition that causes it, if any treatment is needed.

Then you can have a block between the upper chambers of the heart (atria) and the lower chambers (ventricles). These are called AV block. The block interferes with the transmission of the normal impulse from the upper chambers to the lower chambers to cause the heart to beat. The lower chambers are responsible for pumping the blood.

The block can mean that the conduction between the upper and lower chambers is merely slowed, and this will not have a major effect on the function of the heart, or, the block can be such that some of the impulses to cause a heartbeat do not get through at all and finally all of the impulses can be blocked so that the lower chambers have to run independently from the upper chambers. This is called complete AV block.

In complete AV block, or even transitory episodes of it, the lower chambers may beat too slow and lead to inadequate circulation to the brain. This may cause fainting and convulsions. It is complete AV block that often requires the use of a pacemaker. The electronic gadget constantly stimulates the lower pumping chambers at a rate fast enough to be sure the circulation is adequate and to prevent fainting and convulsions or other problems.

The AV block group, slowed conduction, some blocked beats, and complete block, can all be caused by inflammation of the area of conduction between the upper and lower chambers. They can be caused by some medicines and the simple slowing can be induced in some normal people by such simple things as breathholding. In older people the most common cause is atherosclerotic heart disease with fatty-cholesterol deposits in the arteries of the heart. The area of specialized conduction tissue is either damaged, as in a heart attack, or doesn't get adequate circulation, leading to the block.

Circus ordered to give up books

The owners of a circus charged with violating state charitable trust laws were ordered Friday to turn over financial records of two recent performances in Schaumburg to the Illinois Attorney General's office.

Circuit Court Judge Nathan Cohen also extended a restraining order preventing the Carson and Barnes Circus Co. from removing any funds raised during the performances from the bank or the state.

The restraining order was issued this week after the attorney general's office filed suit against the circus owners. Illinois Atty. Gen. William J. Scott charged the owners with forcing the Schaumburg Lions Club into an illegal contract for two performances Monday. Scott said the contract is a "clear violation" of laws requiring charities to receive at least 75 per cent of gross receipts of such events.

Scott also is seeking to nullify the contract and obtain more money for the Lions Club. Donald Mulack, chief of the charitable trust division, said he will "do everything I can to see that the charitable organizations obtain their money immediately."

ROBERT TINGLER, attorney for Carson and Barnes, said his clients "didn't believe they were violating the statute."

"They've been filing similar contracts since 1969 and the attorney general's office never did anything. They are kind of shocked the state says there's something wrong with a contract they have filed every year," he said.

Tingler said his clients "are peddling water right now until we find out if there is a violation. If there has been a violation, the circus has every intention of complying."

Tingler said the circus owners "always felt the contract has been quite fair."

"In fact, the circus lost thousands of dollars on the Schaumburg appearance because of the overhead while the charity at least got something. Under the state law, the circus was entitled to pay its expenses before splitting the excess with the charity," he said.

SIX OTHER Illinois charitable organizations entered into identical contracts with Carson and Barnes, including the Libertyville Jaycees. These contracts also are covered in the suit.

A hearing will be at 2 p.m. Sept. 22 before Cohen.

Strike looms in Dist. 21 pact talks

Teachers and board members in Wheeling-Buffalo Grove Dist. 21 hope to negotiate a new contract before school starts Aug. 29, but the possibility of a strike remains.

Negotiators held their 11th meeting Wednesday and planned a marathon bargaining session for Monday. All district teachers are scheduled to meet next Wednesday to vote on a tentative contract, if one has been prepared, or to decide their next step if one has not.

"We've had a settlement (before school starts) as our goal all along," Hugh Brady, a teacher negotiator, said. "I suspect we'll know by the meeting on the 25th. We're scheduled to go into the night at that session," he added. "We hope to come out with a settlement."

Although both sides have met steadily through the summer with no signs of talks breaking down, Brady said the possibility of a teachers' strike remains.

"That's one of the options we might consider. It's conceivable. The general membership could say 'no contract, no work'," Brady said.

BOTH SIDES HAVE reported little about the negotiations thus far because of a mutually observed gag rule.

Arlington Boosters set 'Dominick's Day'

"Dominick's Day" to benefit the Instrumental Boosters Assn. of Arlington High School, will be Tuesday at any Dominick's Finer food store.

Those who shop at Dominick's that day and present a benefit-day slip to the cashier will allow the store to donate the cash equivalent of 5 per cent of their purchase to the boosters.

Slips are available from any Arlington High School band member or can be obtained at the store on benefit day.

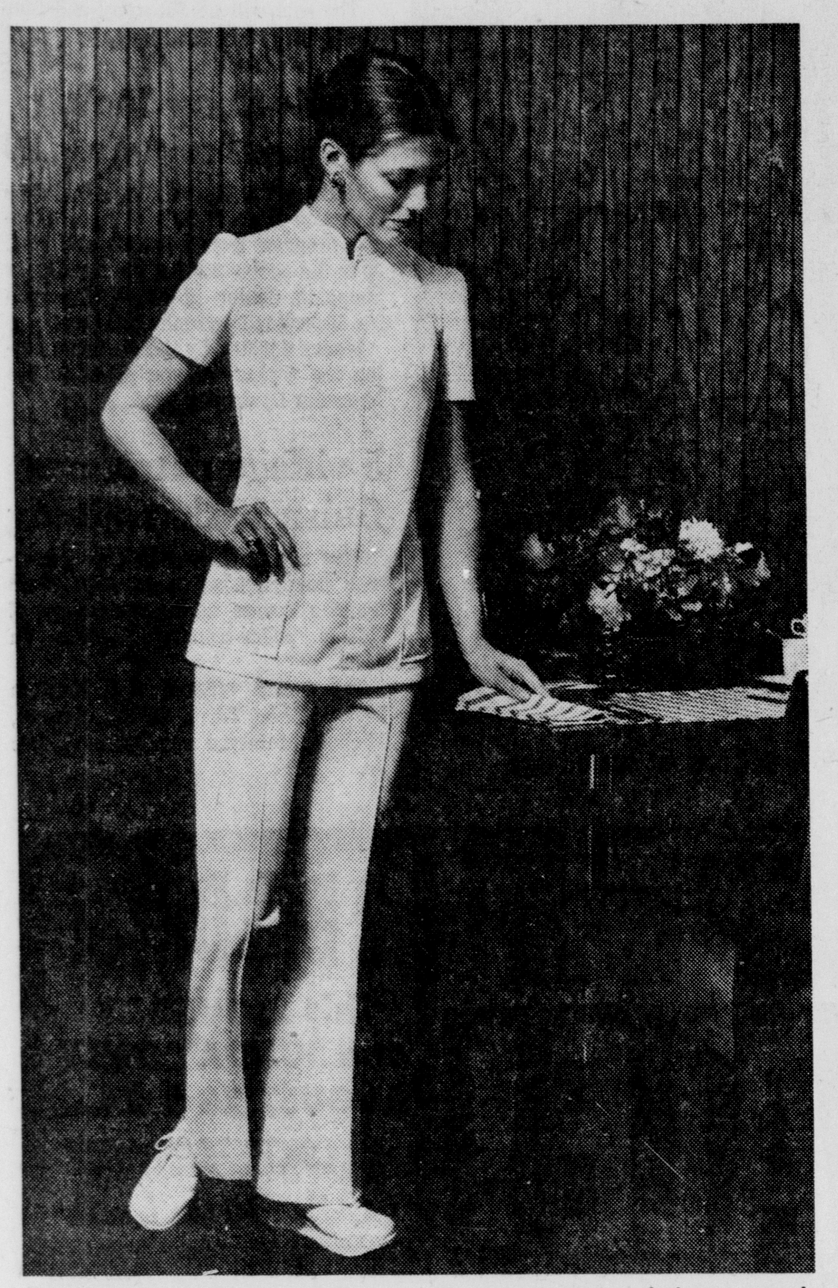
Good news for women in uniforms



WAITRESSES MUST pay close attention to their appearance. This static-free pantsuit with smock-top treatment and large patch pockets is guaranteed to hang straight throughout the day.

Does static electricity have you tugging at your skirt hems and slips or pulling lint off your pants cuffs?

Nothing is quite so irritating and unladylike. There is relief in sight. Cancel-Stat, a new fabric development, was introduced Wednesday by J. C. Penney and will be marketed through the uniform department beginning Sept. 14.

The new fabric, developed by Dow Badische Company, works through a fine diamond-shaped webbing of a material called "conductive Zefran" which runs throughout the polyester warp knit. This web dissipates electrostatic charges immediately.

"WE'RE NOT TALKING about just another anti-static product," said Donald Medeiros of the apparel market development division of Dow.

"The difference between this fabric and other non-cling products (such as slips) is that the first non-cling garments were treated to attract moisture which minimized static electricity only when moisture was available in the air. This treatment also weakened with laundering," he said.

According to Medeiros, Cancel-Stat doesn't rely on moisture but has conductive fibers knitted into the fabric in a quarter-inch pattern. It works regardless of humidity conditions — regardless of how many times it has been laundered.

Medeiros said that in the testing, Dow found that the key to static electricity was not the undergarments but the outer layer. By embedding this tiny layer of conductive carbon particles in main articles of clothing, static electricity no longer causes a problem.

The Cancel-Stat uniform collection has 15 different styles ranging from dresses to pantsuits in miss, junior and half sizes. The dresses boast up-to-date styling with tucked bibs, belts and pocket detail. Pantsuits are shown in tunic styles and even blazers.

THE UNIFORMS ARE machine washable, bleach safe and under full warranty. Ranging in prices from $10 to $15, they are available in all Penney Chicago area stores and through the new catalog.

Cancel-Stat also is a safety product. It meets the U.S. government standards for flame retardance and may be worn successfully in lint-free environments necessary in many laboratory occupations.

The new uniforms also meet the National Fire Protection Association standards for the use of inhalation anesthetics as required for hospital and operating room procedures.

PERFECT FOR women in the medical professions, the new static-free uniform is shown in just one of the 15 styles available, featuring a diagonal tucked front with button self-belt.

According to Mrs. Lois Ziegler, fashion coordinator for J C Penney Co., the limitations for this fabric are limitless. There are plans to delve into other areas in addition to uniforms — sleepwear, lingerie, skirts, blouses, slacks and even bed sheets.

July 26 wedding unites U of I grad students

A recently married couple, Diana Marlese Knutson and Francis Harold Laux are living in Savoy, Ill., near the University of Illinois where both are working on master's degrees.

Diana, daughter of the Roy A. Knutsons of Prospect Heights, is a Hersey High School graduate, has a bachelor's in secondary education from the U of I and is completing a master's in business. She is also a graduate teaching assistant. Her husband has his B.S. in architecture from the U of I, is working on his master's in the same field, and is a design technician for the university.

They were married July 26 in St. Mark Lutheran Church, Mount Prospect, with a dinner dance reception immediately following at Old Orchard Country Club.

DIANE GAITIS, Prospect Heights, was Diana's maid of honor, dressed in an apricot crepe, halter gown with a detachable floral chiffon capelet. She carried apricot, yellow and white carnations with butterfly orchids, baby's breath and ivy.

Gowned identically were the bridesmaids, Phyllis Perry, cousin of the bride from Chicago, Kathy Laux, sister of the groom, and Robin Knutson, the bride's niece from Minneapolis.

Diana's bridal gown was of white silk organza appliqued with Venise lace flowers and pearls. A mantilla veil trimmed in matching lace and attached to a lace cap completed her attire, along with a cascade bouquet of phalaenopsis orchids, white roses, stephanotis and ivy.

Mr. and Mrs. Francis H. Laux

THE GROOM, son of Mr. and Mrs. Raymond Laux of Trenton, Ill., had Harvey Schrenk of Springfield as best man. Groomsmen were the couple's brothers, Dennis and Gary Knutson and Verlan Laux, ushers, Dennis Rubenacker, Champaign, and Gary Bye, Belleville.

The couple honeymooned in Florida.

Pets do attract fleas

The homeline
by Dorothy Ritz

Dear Dorothy: Better warn people who keep pets not to go on vacation without spraying their entire homes for fleas. We went off (taking the cat with us), never dreaming what would happen. We got back to an infested house and had to move out until the exterminators could flea-proof the place. Dreadful! If it wasn't that I'd break our daughter's heart, I'd carry that blamed cat right off to the animal shelter. — Mrs. G. H. C.

It's a sound reminder. Where there are house pets, fleas are attracted. Somehow they are kept under control by the presence of the animal. When the animal is absent, large colonies develop from eggs laid in the pet's bedding, in lint and dust in cracks. Flea powders and collars are recommended for use on the pets, but full spraying is needed with pesticides like malathion, methoxychlor, ronnel or pyrethrum.

Some old-timers believe firmly in spreading walnut tree branches around or dipping cotton balls in oil of eucalyptus and hanging them where fleas gather. Pretreatment as you suggest is a good idea.

Dear Dorothy: Is it illegal to put paraffin in candy I plan to make and sell? —Mrs. J. B. Hawkes

Yes, if you plan to sell any of it across the state line. Paraffin is listed as a nonnutritive substance. And the Federal Food Act says confectionary violates rule standards if it contains any nonnutritive substance other than the authorized colorings, harmless flavoring, harmless resinous glaze not in excess of four-tenths of one percent, natural gum and pectin. In short, skip the paraffin.

Dear Dorothy: Do you add anything to water in which you cook artichokes? —Grace Marvin

Two tablespoons of vinegar and a garlic clove. Great.

Dear Dorothy: Is there a way to remove a decal from the painted surface of an automobile without damaging the paint? It's just an ordinary decal applied by the dealer showing his name. —Thomas Bridges.

One of our correspondents said this kind of decal came off after salad dressing was spread over the area. Some others have reported trichloroethane does the job. An auto dealer said the decals come off when soaked with a wet towel. And cleaning fluid or toothpaste often takes off any remaining bits of adhesive.

Dear Dorothy: You recommended putting naphtha soap in the crotches of dogwood trees to repel borers. Would this also work against borers in fruit trees? —Jo Hammond

I've been told it also works on fruit trees, but I have no documentation to back it up. Since certain odors drive off insects, it seems worth a try. With dogwoods, the soap stays in the tree from one season to next and I'd guess the same would go with fruit trees.

Shelia Burson, Jeff Heck met on university campus

Mr. and Mrs. Jeffrey A. Heck

Jeffrey Alan Heck of Mount Prospect and his bride, the former Shelia Ann Burson of Lawrenceville, Ill., are living in a Broadview apartment near Maywood where Jeffrey is a junior at Loyola Dental School.

Son of Dr. and Mrs. Paul H. Heck, and a graduate of Forest View High, Jeffrey also studied at Eastern Illinois University where he met his bride-to-be, daughter of the Edgar A. Bursons, Lawrenceville. Shelia graduated in '75 from Eastern and is employed at McGaw Hospital in Maywood.

The pair's double ring wedding service took place at 1:30 p.m. July 26 in Lawrenceville's Central Christian Church, with Shelia wearing a satin-faced crepe gown and waist-length veil. She also wore a teardrop pendant borrowed from her mother and carried a nosegay of white roses and carnations with blue delphiniums.

MAID OF HONOR was Glenda Adcox, Charleston, Ill., and bridesmaids, all college and Lawrenceville friends of the bride, were Jan Gable, Maggie Willis, Luanne Hall and Missy Bruhn. Their halter gowns were in baby blue satin and they carried white, single stem roses.

Tabora Raggo, 5, Lawrenceville, was flower girl and was also in baby blue.

Best man was Mike Guimond, Houston, Texas, and groomsmen were Gary Brankin, Mount Prospect, Bill Moore, Arlington Heights, Tim Hart, Waukegan, and Kevin Seger, Decatur. Ushers were the bride's brothers, Mike and Jeff.

A reception was held in the Eagles Club in Lawrenceville after which the newlyweds honeymooned a week in Gatlinburg, Tenn., and the Smoky Mountains.

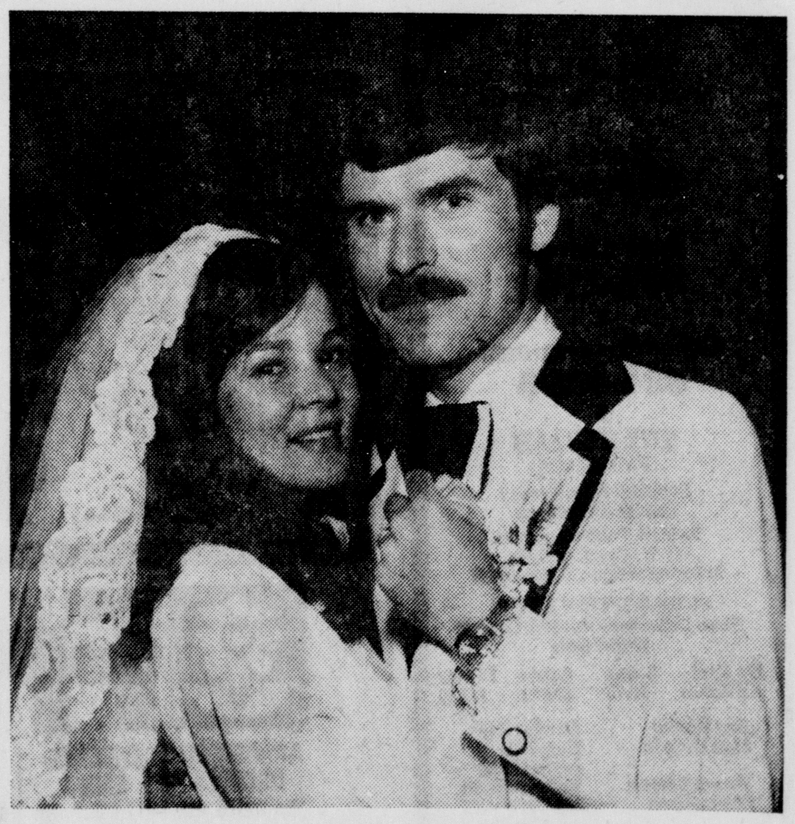
Bride's earrings are 'something old'

A pair of diamond earrings that have been in her family for 200 years was the "something old" worn by Karen M. Steigelman for her marriage Aug. 2 to William J. Bartelme. The candlelight wedding took place at 4:30 p.m. in Our Saviour's Lutheran Church, Arlington Heights, with a reception following at Mr. Duke's Villa DiDomenico, Wood Dale.

Karen, a '75 graduate of Marquette University, is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. James Steigelman, Arlington Heights, and Bill is the son of Mrs. James Carlin and the late Eugene Bartelme. Mr. and Mrs Carlin are from Cleveland, Ohio, where Bill is employed as assistant food and beverage director of the Cleveland Marriott.

FOR THE DOUBLE ring service Karen chose a gown of white sheer over taffeta trimmed in Chantilly lace and sequins. Her mantilla veil was attacked to a lace Camelot headpiece, and she carried a white orchid with white carnations, yellow roses and stephanotis.

In yellow and blue print crepe gowns were Shelley August, Muskegon, Mich., maid of honor, and the bridesmaids, Cheryl Rohwing, Grayslake, Mary Fran Marron, Hamilton, Mass., and Janice Ericson, Arlington Heights. Their flowers were white carnations, blue-tipped carnations and white daisies. Cheryl was also soloist for the service.



Mr. and Mrs. William J. Bartelme

Best man was Joseph Scolaro, Cleveland, and ushers were William Kish and Thomas and David Schuller, all of Cleveland.

The couple are now residing in Middleburg Heights, Ohio.

Answers to questions from readers

Collecting
with Grace Carolyn

As you know, I will attempt to answer any question related to antiques or collecting, within the resources of my own library, the public library and various antiques periodicals to which I subscribe — plus the ever decreasing information I am able to store under my hat. No, actually, information on antiques seems to stay with me pretty well, but don't ask me what I had for dinner last night.

Sometimes a question from a reader requires a great deal of research, and even then my answer is a guarded one, padded with "in general," "in my opinion" and other dodges. I have three questions which have come in recently, however, that I luckily was able to answer, and which may interest others.

Q: My teaset says "silver on copper" and my mother always said it was "Sheffield." It also has some initials on the bottoms, B, S and C. Can you tell me if this is real silver?

A: Sheffield silver is an old process, prior to the discovery of electroplating, that is, prior to about 1840. Sheffield was made when a sheet of silver was melded to copper by rolling the heated metals. If a piece says "Silver on copper" or anything similar, it is electroplated, later than true Sheffield. The marks you mention stand for the Birmingham Silver Co., located in Brooklyn, N. Y., and according to my book on silver, the company is still in business.

Q: I have a vase left me by my aunt, and on the bottom it says "Van Briggle, Colorado Springs, Colo." How old is it, and is it valuable?

A: The Van Briggle story is an interesting and quite romantic one. In 1887 Artus Van Briggle went to work as artist-decorator for the Rookwood Pottery in Cincinnati, Ohio. He quickly became one of its most accomplished designers and artists and was sent to Paris for further study in 1894. He returned in the summer of 1896 and remained at Rookwood for three more years. He had met Anne Gregory in Paris and after a tempestuous engagement (lasting eight years), married her in 1903. But Artus had always suffered ill health and the young couple moved to Colorado Springs, Colo., where they started their own pottery, using the matt glaze technique he had perfected while at Rookwood.

Artus died the next year, leaving the young widow to continue the pottery alone, which she did, carrying on the experimentation with Colorado clays which Artus had begun, and the business expanded rapidly. It still flourishes today. The pottery has regular conducted tours.

Most Van Briggle is marked with a double A, shaped like an arch, signifying Artus and Anne. Pieces marked "Colorado Springs" were made after 1920. Favorite colors used were Turquoise Ming and Persian Rose, both said to be inspired by the Colorado sunsets and the mountains.

You did not state the size or type vase you have, but as an example, a 12-inch vase, simply swirled in the Art Nouveau manner, would be priced in a shop at about $15-$20.

Q: In one of your columns you mentioned that baskets are collectible. We have an old rye winnowing basket that has been in my family for about 50 years, perhaps longer. It is larger at both ends and small in the middle, and has a leather handle. Can you give me an approximate price on it?

A: Yes, indeed, baskets are very big in the collecting world nowadays. I have seen winnowing baskets (whether for rye or other grains I do not know) in primitive antiques booths at shows as high as $100. The price would depend upon size and condition. Since you didn't say, I am giving a price for a basket in excellent condition, including leather handle (original) about 30 inches long.

(If you have a question you would like answered, or a collection you would like featured (it is not necessary to indicate your name and address in the article if you do not wish to), please write and enclose a black and white clear picture to Grace Carolyn Dahlberg, in care of Suburban Living, Paddock Publications, Box 280, Arlington Heights, Ill. 60006).

Mr. and Mrs. Thomas F. Hutchison

Couple return to Dallas

Although Elizabeth Ann Oestmann and Thomas Foster Hutchison are both '75 graduates of Southern Methodist University they have returned to Dallas where Tom will be working on his master's degree at SMU and where Beth is now working. Married Aug. 2 in The Presbyterian Church of Barrington, the newlyweds honeymooned five days in Osage Beach, Mo., before leaving for Texas.

Daughter of the Charles H. Oestmanns, Arlington Heights, Beth is a graduate of Arlington High and Tom, son of the Robert F. Hutchisons, Barrington, is a graduate of Barrington High.

For the double ring service at 11 a.m. Beth wore an ivory sata peau gown with bead trim and cathedral train. A matching headpiece held her veil, and she carried white roses, carnations, gardenias and stephanotis.

HER SISTER, Janie of Dallas, was maid of honor, and her sister-in-law, Mary Oestmann, Des Plaines, the groom's sister, Ann Hutchison, Barrington, Susie Perry, Branson, Mo., and Mary Wirka, Arlington Heights, were bridesmaids. All wore yellow and green floral chintz gowns and carried baskets of daisies, each dyed a different shade to pick up the colors of their gowns.

Frank Roby, Dallas, was best man, and ushers were the bride's brother, James of Des Plaines; David Wengierski, Deerfield; Hess Hester, Memphis, Tenn.; and Chad Schultz, Barrington.

The champagne brunch reception for 200 guests was held at the Barn of Barrington.

Area pair plan summer wedding

Mr. and Mrs. Allen Brown of Rolling Meadows announce the engagement of their daughter, Connie Lynn, to William Allen Wilkerson, son of Mrs. Betty Wilkerson of Arlington Heights. A summer '76 wedding is planned.

William, a '73 graduate of Rolling Meadows High School, is completing army duty at Fort Campbell, Ky. Connie, a '74 graduate of Rolling Meadows High, is a sophomore psychology major at Blackburn College, Carlinville, Ill.

Fellowship award by Gamma Phi Beta

Clare M. Downey of Arlington Heights is the recipient of a fellowship from the Gamma Phi Beta Foundation. More than $12,000 has been awarded in scholarships and fellowships for the 1975-1976 school year from the sorority's foundation.

Miss Downey, a 1975 graduate of the University of Illinois, is working on a master's degree in speech pathology at the University of Wisconsin, Madison. She plans to work in a hospital or clinical environment and then study for a master's degree in audiology.

In addition to providing scholarships and fellowships, Gamma Phi Beta Foundation operates camps for underprivileged girls in Denver and Vancouver and awards campership funds throughout the U.S. and Canada.

Margaret Daluge's students now to call her Mrs. Plank

A teacher at Stevenson High School in Prairie View, Margaret R. Daluge was married July 26 to Walter J. Plank in her home town of Bloomington, Minn. They exchanged vows and rings under an arch of flowers in the chapel of Lutheran Church of the Redemption.

Margaret, daughter of the Willard L. Daluges of Bloomington, lives in Buffalo Grove. Her husband is the son of the Walter Planks of Glenview and is an Internal Revenue agent in Skokie.

His brother, Charles, sang for the 4 p.m. ceremony and another brother, William, was best man. Maid of honor was Linda Sue Andersen of Racine, Wis., and Janis Nelson, Buffalo Grove, was the bridesmaid. The two attendants wore light blue daisy-print gowns and carried baskets of daisies and blue carnations.

THE BRIDE'S brother, Wendell Daluge of St. Cloud, Minn., served as groomsman and John Rohr and Timothy McBreen of Des Plaines as ushers.

Margaret wore white silk organza trimmed in lace and a fingertip veil. Her bouquet was of red roses and stephanotis.

Afterwards there was a dinner with dancing for 120 guests at the Bloomington VFW Hall. The newlyweds then flew to Colorado for a week's vacation and are now back living in Buffalo Grove.

Margaret is a graduate of St. Olaf College, Northfield, Minn. Walter attended Quincy (Ill.) College.

KIDS' KORNER
by MARILYN HALLMAN
BEAR IN THE PIT
Your parents may have played this game when they were your age. You'll enjoy it, too, anytime you have a gang of kids outdoors.
Stand in a big circle, holding hands. One player, "the bear," is in the center. He tries to get out by ducking under or breaking through the clasped hands. Other players try to keep him from doing this by moving their hands up or down and hanging on tightly.
When the bear finally breaks out, everyone chases him. First player to tag him becomes the next "bear." It's a good idea to set a time limit. If the captive "bear" doesn't break out within this time, choose a new bear.

Herald opinion

Drug analysis can slow abuse

It's a sad reality in the war against illegal and harmful drugs that no single approach seems able to solve the whole problem.

For almost 10 years, our schools, social service agencies and law enforcement system have battled this problem, but it has continued to grow.

Now there's another potential weapon in the battle, and we believe it deserves a fair trial in the Northwest suburbs.

The weapon is drug analysis, and it is a simple process: a person who wants a drug analyzed leaves it anonymously at a drop-off center, which in turn sends it to the laboratories of G. D. Searle & Co. in Skokie. That firm analyzes the drug's contents and sends an analysis back to the drop-off center, which in turn passes the information back to the person who asked for the analysis. The analysis only lists the ingredients and not the percentage of the ingredients in the drug.

The distribution of illegal drugs is a highly informal, street-corner process, and thus the danger of "bad" drugs is always present. If this program can prevent a few of our children from suffering severe physical or mental damage from bad drugs, then it will have served some purpose.

But the need for such a program goes beyond preventing an occasional death. What it also can accomplish is to put persons who use drugs in touch with persons who can give them advice about the hazards of drug abuse. In this way, perhaps they'll realize that drugs are not the unalloyed pleasure trip that proponents say they are.

Last month the Regional Youth Services Bureau, which serves and is funded by Elk Grove, Palatine and Schaumburg townships, considered and rejected participation in the drug analysis program. That's unfortunate.

The Searle program's nearest drop-off center is the Irene Josselyn Clinic in Northfield; only one local agency, the Spectrum Youth Services Bureau in Schaumburg Township, has been using this center.

In other words, most Northwest suburban persons have no convenient access to a system which can tell them what's in that pill they're about to pop into their mouths.

It would be deceptive to consider drug analysis as a cure-all for this society's drug problems. Drug abuse, and the reasons for it, are far more complex than that. But what it does accomplish is to create a first step for persons to examine what they're doing to themselves. If it responsibly helps start this important process, then we support the program.

EDITORIAL: Forming a new police force for an unincorporated section of Wheeling Township makes no sense to us.

Northwest suburbs need ozone testing

It's no longer enough to let Chicago and its near-in suburbs tell us how much ozone there is in our air; an ozone monitoring station is needed in the Northwest suburbs.

In the past few years, the presence of ozone, a colorless but irritating gas which seems to be an inevitable part of this area's air pollution, has become a summertime nuisance.

There currently are ozone monitoring stations in Chicago and Skokie, but none in the Northwest suburbs. It's expensive to maintain such stations, but it is in the public interest for county officials to consider developing such a station here.

Ozone may be an irritant, or merely a long-term threat to the health of most people. But those with allergies, acute sensitivity or respiratory disease find it a more serious problem. Measuring the intensity in Chicago or Skokie gives Northwest suburban residents only a rough approximation of the threat here, and we urge county officials to consider location of an ozone monitoring station in this area.

LONDON, Aug. 23 — King George made public the royal proclamation declaring many American subjects in "open and avowed rebellion." He ordered that all loyal to him "withstand and suppress such rebellion," and give the government information concerning "treason and traitorous conspiracies."

Sure it's the real stuff. Had it tested at three drug analysis centers.

She's happy for the alligators

by DOROTHY MEYER

Did you know that the alligator is in danger of being removed from the endangered species list?

I read that a few weeks ago and although I never got around to joining any of the conservation groups, I have always been on their side. So I was happy for them about the alligators.

Then I read some more and discovered that "an environmental group was apprehensive" because this would be the first time that any species would be removed from the endangered list.

This I don't understand. How come the environmental group isn't happy that their efforts have been successful in the preservation and increase of at least one species?

Maybe it's because the subject is alligators and the group's apprehension is because they've been too successful.

Maybe the chairman of the environmental group is from Florida 'gator country and he suddenly has trouble getting safely home from the office at night.

Maybe he's apprehensive because his wife has always wanted a pair of alligator shoes and now she can have them with a clear conscience, but he can't afford them.

I must admit that a new pair of shoes was the first thing I thought about when I read the news. My very first pay check — $13 — went for a pair of reptile shoes but they weren't alligator because even then alligator shoes cost twice that much. So I settled for South American boa constrictor but I had to quit wearing them because every six weeks or so they'd start to pinch.

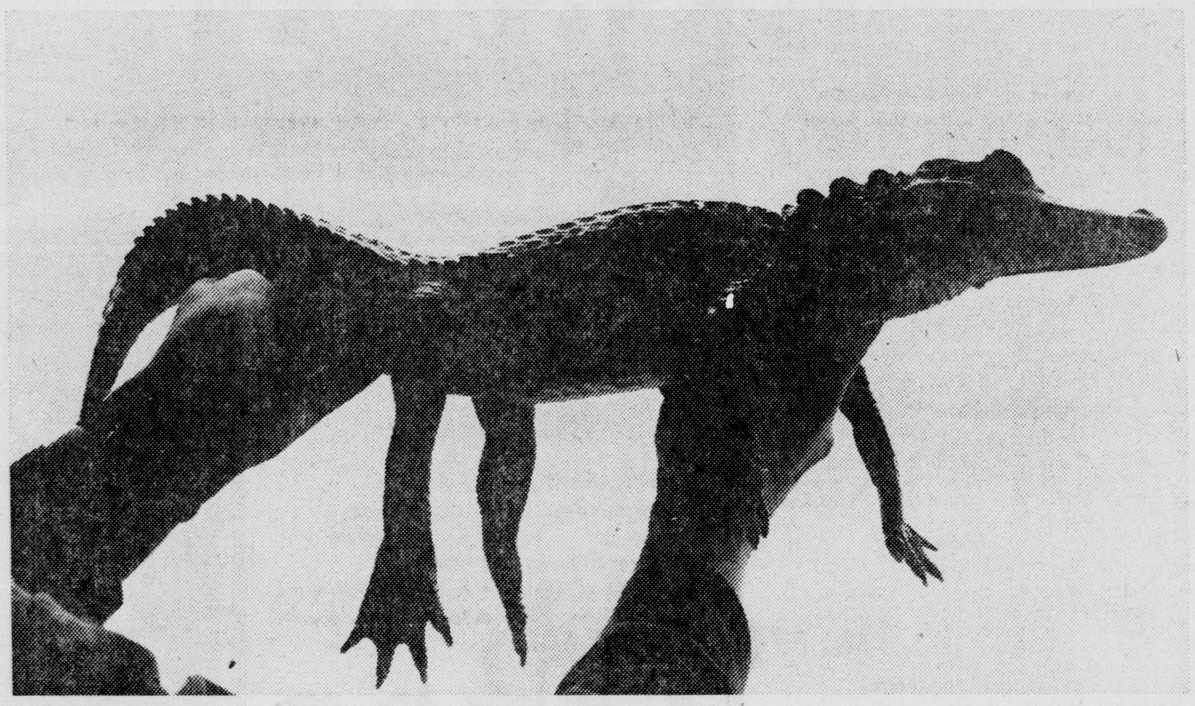
Now, 35 years later, I'm being tantalized by the thought that I can at long last get the shoes I've always yearned for.

But there's still a hitch.

The news item stated that the alligator is now considered a nuisance and should be removed from the endangered species list in all but three states. I bet I'm living in one of them. However, I've never seen an alligator around here and the biggest nuisances I've encountered are raccoons in my corn patch and trying to find a place to park.

The article didn't name the three states which is also a nuisance. There must be alligator-shoe loving women in every state of the Union, all wondering if they should start saving for shoes and a matching bag.

I bet the environmental group wouldn't be so shook up if it was the Pacific Ridley turtle that was getting to be a nuisance. Who wants a pair of Pacific Ridley turtle shoes?



The almanac

Today is Saturday, Aug. 23, the 235th day of 1975 with 130 to follow.

The moon is between its full phase and last quarter.

The morning stars are Mars, Jupiter and Saturn.

The evening stars are Mercury and Venus.

Those born on this date are under the sign of Virgo. American General Jonathan Wainwright, hero of Bataan in the Pacific Theater of World War II, was born Aug. 23, 1883. This is also the date of birth of American bandleader Bob Crosby (1913) and dancer-actor Gene Kelly (1912).

On this day in history:

• In 1924, Mrs. Miriam "Ma" Ferguson won the Democratic nomination for governor of Texas. In November, she became the first elected woman governor of a state.

• In 1926, hundreds of thousands mourned the death of movie idol Rudolph Valentino.

• In 1971, the western powers and Russia reached agreement on the future of West Berlin. Russia pledged "unhindered" passage of traffic between West Berlin and West Germany across East German territory.

A thought for the day: British poet Thomas DeQuincey said, "It is notorious that the memory strengthens as you lay burdens upon it, and becomes trustworthy as you trust it."

He applauds 3 summer workers

It is our most sincere pleasure to inform you and your area readers of a public "thank you" we wish to extend to Mr. Richard Hall, Elk Grove Township supervisor and the board of auditors for a most appreciated good turn being done for, not only ourselves (as an agency interested and committed to serving the public), but also for three of the young men residing in Elk Grove Township, as a result of Federal revenue sharing funds.

Some time ago, Mr. Hall contacted us stating that in their efforts to provide summer jobs for some of the township youth, he would like to make available to us at the total expense of the township some young people to perform whatever tasks we needed to have done.

Needless to say, anyone passing within the area of Alexian Brothers Medical Center, on whose property our farmhouse is located, has noticed the poor condition of the grounds surrounding the farmhouse, as well as the paint-neglected condition of the exterior of the farmhouse itself.

Mr. Hall responded to these needs by hiring for us three of the most pleasant and, more importantly, industrious young men to perform the tremendous task of upgrading our exterior appearance.

Work has now been in progress for approximately four weeks. At this point, the weeds and unsightly overgrowth of shrubbery has been cleared, rocks have been removed, trees have been trimmed of dead and broken branches and in one instance, an entire tree was cut down with the help of a gentleman from the township's road crew. The grounds have been rototilled in preparation of an early fall grass seeding and painting of the exterior of the farmhouse is currently in progress.

On days when weather conditions prohibited them from performing any outdoor work, these boys have busied themselves with various indoor tasks such as wall and window washing and whatever else they saw to be done, motivated almost entirely by their own sense of obligation to give a full and honest day's work for their salary.

Elk Grove Township continues to be sensitive to the human needs of the community. On one hand, our facility is able to get a "facelifting" which we would not have been able to accomplish; on the other hand, some fine young youth are being provided with an excellent work experience.

The officials of Elk Grove Township should be commended.

'Three cheers' for Samaritan

Your "Good Samaritan" story of August 12 deserves kudos on three counts.

One, kudos to Tony Ruble who demonstrated that the human quality of concern for another is not dead — a renewal of hope for all who read the story; two, kudos to Peter Smith who gave voice to his gratitude, thus warming all who learned of his plight and its resolution, and three, kudos to Diane Mermigas, whose journalistic effort ranks with the best in the art of writing a human interest story.

Elim convention coverage hit

Your article on Aug. 13 regarding the Elim convention presented a one-sided picture. The conservative view is not something supported by Dr. Preus alone. It is the position held by Missouri Synod since its conception, and Dr. Preus is supported by the majority of pastors and lay-people in the Missouri Synod.

We conservatives would appreciate your publishing the conservative point of view.

Pastor Norbert Kleidon of Prince of Peace Lutheran Church, Missouri Synod, Palatine, was the circuit pastoral delegate to the Anaheim convention and could give you any information you would need.

Arlington Park to showcase top fillies today in Pucker Up test

by JIM COOK

A stellar field of 12 high-stepping three-year-old fillies have indicated they will vie for the trophy in the $30,000-added Pucker Up Stakes today during Arlington Park's featured eighth race.

Headlining the event are stakes-proven Twenty Six Girl, Satan's Cheer, Snow Doll and Miami Game.

The gals will be asked to negotiate a grueling one and one-sixteenth mile route over the lawn in what is shaping up as a classic duel of early speed and stretch-running ability.

Twenty-six Girl and Satan's Cheer will share high weight with 124 pounds while Snow Doll and Pago Hop check in with 121, Kissapotamus, General Partner and Miami Game at 118 and Mook, Bo Tide, Princess Ormea, Be Victorious and Red Top Beauty lug 112 pounds. Twenty Six Girl and Miami Game will be coupled in the betting.

With veteran Earlie Fires in the irons, Twenty Six Girl will probably draw the most support from the race patrons on hand. The stretch-running fillie was a going away winner of Arlington's Patricia A. Handicap earlier in the meeting.

Snow Doll, the runnerup in the Pat A., returned to winning form in a wire-to-wire allowance grass event to re-establish her game plan of "catch me if you can."

An up-and-comer is Be Victorious, and at just 112 pounds, must not be counted out of the competition. Riding the crest of a five-length maiden triumph and a smashing allowance turf event the last time out, Be Victorious will break from the No. 10 hole.

"I kind of had a hunch she would like the grass," her young trainer Bobby Voelkner said. "You see, she doesn't like to have a lot of stuff thrown back at her.

"Be Victorious was very green in her first couple of starts and shied from the dirt being kicked back in her face," he concluded. Now she may live up to her name, again.

Princess Ormea also indicated she is at the top of her game by prepping for the engagement with a half-mile workout in :48 2/5 breezing with trainer Joe Bollero observing from astride a stable pony.

The Pucker Up will be televised locally by WBBM-TV during a half-hour broadcast beginning at 5 p.m. Bruce Roberts will handle the commentary and track announcer Phil Georgeff the call of the distaff duel.

Should all dozen fillies parade to post in today's feature the gross purse would climb to $33,550 with the winner collecting a $21,550 paycheck.

And speaking of paychecks, Wednesday's 63rd program brought Arlington's total mutuel handle to $109,811,308 for the season as opposed to $101,646,307 wagered over the same number of dates last year. The poor economy has somehow produced an increase of $8,165,007!

Spotted Indian ponies charge into spotlight

Spotted Indian ponies will be charging into the limelight at Arlington Park this afternoon when Appaloosa racing invades the local oval for a five-day stand.

Extra races will be carded today, Aug. 25, 27 and 30 and Sept. 1 at 1:30 p.m., one-half hour before the normal nine-race thoroughbred program.

There will be betting on the five-furlong (five-eighths of a mile) sprints, but the Appaloosa races will not become part of the daily double. Last year racing fans bet $300,000 on the five races at Arlington.

The first four races on the schedule will be devoted to overnight purses, drawing the best Appaloosas currently racing in the United States.

The Labor Day race will be the Ben Blades Memorial Stakes, named in honor of the late Illinois representative who sponsored the Illinois Appaloosa racing bill.

Back to defend the title he won in the Ben Blades last year will be Time Flies. Time Flies, now a four-year-old, went on to become the National Appaloosa Champion of 1974 and has been beaten only once this season as he continues to dominate the Appaloosa ranks.

Manitou Rock was the horse that branded the only blemish on Time Flies' record and he will be trying to turn the trick again in the Ben Blades along with budding star Wild Tequilla, a little three-year-old filly who is undefeated this year in seven starts.

TROPHY TIME. Art Mugalian, left, and Charlie Dickinson of the Herald sports department check out the trophies that will be used in the 15th Annual Paddock Publications Tennis Tournament. Competition begins Aug. 30.

And Vikes want NFLPA's Garvey out

Connors settles; Alabama sues

Jimmy Connors and the tennis establishment buried their hatchet, settling out of court for "a substantial amount" in the multi-million dollar suits Connors had filed against the Association of Tennis Professionals (ATP).

The University of Alabama filed suit against the NCAA in Tuscaloosa Circuit Court to block recent legislation which limits the number of athletes on major college football teams.

And, Minnesota Vikings' players, in an unprecedented move, have demanded the resignation of Ed Garvey as executive director of the National Football League Players' Association (NFLPA).

All of that occurred Friday in three major sports developments.

They could find Connors competing for the U.S. Davis Cup team, Alabama continuing to use 70 or 80 athletes per football contest and Garvey coming into hot water with many NFL teams.

First, for Connors. This year's Wimbledon runner-up and tennis' top ranking male player settled nearly $18 million in suits for an amount which he and the ATP agreed not to disclose.

The initial suit for $10 million came after Connors was barred from the 1974 French Open, thus preventing him from a chance to achieve the Grand Slam of Australia, France, Wimbledon and Forest Hills. It would have given Connors a $100,000 bonus. He won the other three tournaments.

Connors later filed suits for $3 million against Jack Kramer and $5 million against Arthur Ashe, both ATP officials. The third suit was announced just before Wimbledon finals this year when Ashe beat Connors.

With his legal battles finished, Connors said he might now settle differences which have kept him away from the U.S. Davis Cup team.

It's a new legal war for Alabama and the NCAA, major governing body of collegiate athletics.

Alabama is protesting new NCAA rules that would limit football teams to 60 players per home game and 48 on the road. Its suit challenges legality of two rules changes adopted by a special NCAA convention last week in Chicago.

Southeastern Conference Commissioner Boyd McWhorter two days ago stated the SEC might leave the NCAA if some modification of new football rules is not worked out. Alabama is an SEC member.

Coach Paul "Bear" Bryant is conducting practices as usual and indicated the Alabama Crimson Tide may lead a move to draw major college football schools away from the NCAA.

Finally, NFL Players' Association exec Garvey might soon watch his days become numbered.

The Vikings met Thursday and in nearly unanimous voice, voted not to pay NFLPA dues or take any directions from Garvey. Player rep Ed White made the announcement Friday.

Garvey has served four years in his position and last year received $50,207 salary. He's been at the forefront of controversial player contract freedom negotiations.

It's known that the NFLPA roams in dire financial straits. Garvey, reached in New York, said he will remain on the job.

Cubs win, 6-5; Sox beaten

An 11th inning error allowed Don Kessinger to score the tying run from second base and Jose Cardenal worked a suicide squeeze which went for a hit to score Rick Monday with the winning run Friday in the Cubs' 6-5 triumph over Houston.

With one out, Bill Madlock directed a ground ball at Astro second baseman Ken Boswell who had the little white menace skip between his legs.

Kessinger scored from second and Monday, who walked, advanced to third. Cardenal then dropped his perfect bunt, preserving relief pitcher Darold Knowles' fifth win.

At Boston, Dwight Evans homered in the fifth and Fred Lynn singled across a run in the sixth as the Red Sox defeated the White Sox, 2-1. Both runs came against starter and loser Claude Osteen (6-12).

Bucky Dent's single scored Brian Downing with Chicago's run in the seventh.

Novara earns cycling gold

Sue Novara, America's 19-year-old sprint cycling ace, captured her first world title and Daniel Morelon of France won an unprecedented seventh men's sprint crown at World Cycling Championships in Belgium. Novara won in straight heats over Czech Iva Zajickova . . .

Vijay Amritraj upset Jimmy Connors, 4-6, 7-6, 6-4, in the $50,000 Tennis Week Open Tournament at Orange Lawn. . .

Al Geiberger's 134 two-round total gives him a two-stroke lead over Dave Stockton and Bob Dickson in the $250,000 Tournament Players Championship . . .

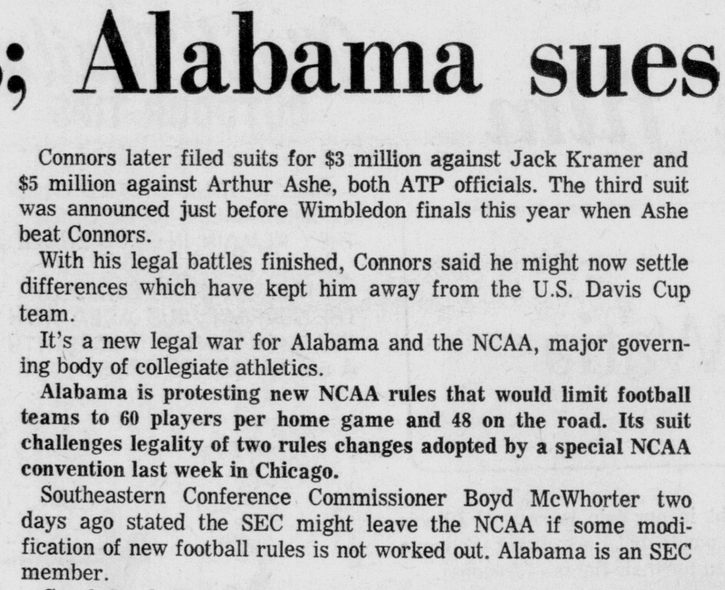
The Pittsburgh Pirates swept their doubleheader with Cincinnati, 4-2 and 7-2, to command at least a 1½ game lead over Philadelphia in the NL East . . .

Chicago's Bears meet the St. Louis Cardinals at 1:30 p.m. today in Champaign for an NFL exhibition. It will be telecast at 10:30 p.m. on Channel 2. And the WFL Chicago Winds play today at Hawaii. There will be no TV or radio . . .

Frenchman Guy Drut set a 110-meter hurdle world record of 13.0 seconds in Berlin, clipping one-tenth off the mark he held jointly with American Rod Milburn. The USA's Steve Williams tied the 100-meter dash world mark of 9.9 seconds . . .

Defending champion Bjorn Borg, Arthur Ashe, Australia's John Alexander and Poland's Wotjek Fibak have reached quarterfinals of the U.S. Pro Tennis Championships . . .

Friday NFL exhibitions: Pittsburgh 31, Baltimore 10, Philadelphia 24, New England 10, Washington 23, Cleveland 14. Saturday: Los Angeles at Buffalo, Green Bay at Cincinnati, Minnesota at Dallas, Miami at New Orleans, Kansas City at Detroit, Oakland at Atlanta, Houston at Denver.



JOSE CARDENAL of Cubs is tagged out at plate by Astros' catcher Cliff Johnson during eighth inning Friday. Cardenal delivered 11th inning RBI bunt which won game, 6-5.

Les Zikes . . . still the greatest

Our good South American neighbor Venezuela, hotbed of insurgency, governmental upheaval and other pleasantries, has been good to Les Zikes, allowing his skin to remain intact.

Zikes well remembers his 1964 Venezuelan trip. That was for Zikes' second Federation Internationale des Quilleurs (FIQ) World bowling tournament appearance.

No doubt to preserve freedom of speech, the bowling lanes were outfitted with army guys packing all manner of rifles.

And Zikes' wife, Mary, wasn't the least bit reassured when she noticed men with submachine guns lining their hotel roof. ("Rat-a-tat-tat, you're history.")

"A few weeks before we got there, I guess there'd been a bomb set off in the hotel," Les said Thursday while awaiting the PBA Waukegan Open Pro-Am.

"You know, Castro had a lot of men running in those hills. Guess he still does."

But 1964 was just a puppy-in-disguise compared to Les' visit the following year when he teamed with Jim Stefanich of Joliet.

The tournament was doubles for six games. Zikes remembers that midway, he and Stefanich led by "200-to-300 pins," couldn't possibly be caught and were consistently rolling in the 700s each.

That's when a native Venezuelan threw a first ball nine. And when the pinsetter dropped his 10th pin, the man began marking "X" for his score.

Now, ant 55-handicap bowler knows you don't keep the pins which get knocked over by a pinsetter. But it seems this fellow didn't see it that way. And neither did his partial crowd.

Or, for that matter, Stefanich.

Zikes' teammate popped up from his seat and began all manner of rules interpretations which had Les rather concerned because the crowd was becoming angry.

"Here Stefanich and I are 200-to-300 pins ahead of everybody and he's going to argue over one strike," Les said. "I'm pulling him down, saying, 'Let them have it.' "

As in, "I want my scalp."

"People get wild down there," Les said. "They get strange and kill each other." Ala, soccer crowds.

Les, incidentally, ran off with individual honors as the Zikes-Stefanich team won easily. And the same fans who became so irate at one little strike showed their appreciation for the American excellence.

"You win one of those tournaments, they put you on the platform, play your national anthem and people look at you as if you're a king," Les said.

"I got a standing ovation they said lasted five minutes. I don't know. It seemed like forever. I'll tell you, I was almost in tears."

The non-professional career of this man from Palatine has been well documented before in these pages and others.

Briefly, no man worldwide has approached the pinnacles Zikes attained during the mid-1960's. His eight gold medals in FIQ World tournament competition is an awesome record which likely will never be tested.

No man has ever won three American Bowling Congress tournament titles . . . except for Zikes at Des Moines (1962), Buffalo (1963) and Oakland (1964).

And Zikes just keeps rolling in the ABC affairs. He won this year's Classic Singles Championship in Dayton.

There have been many other titles, so numerous that a listing would probably miss one or two. Let it suffice that Les Zikes will someday be a member of the ABC Hall of Fame.

His name appears on this year's ballot. If the bowling media doesn't honor him this year, then perhaps next season. Or the next. But they will include his name or for our money, they'll be making a great big mistake.

Les Zikes

But it's not probable.

"It's been hinted to me that I will make it," Les said at Waukegan, obviously happy about the fact. "But I don't know when.

"That would be the biggest honor I could get. For some people, it might not mean anything. But what more could I do than make the Hall of Fame?"

Les, manager of Beverly Lanes in Arlington Heights, traded his amateur's status seven years ago for a spot on the PBA tour. His only pro win was at the 1969 Waukegan Open.

Zikes used to say he wouldn't like the travel. But it's growing on him. Waukegan is his 20th tourney this year. He's cashed more than $12,000, nearly double last year's figure.

Most important, Zikes says his game is stronger than ever, that he's made a few changes, no longer throws that slow hook and has taken off some speed. He's also made a couple finger adjustments and now finds better control.

Les will be 41 in October. There could be big dollar years ahead yet.

"Sure, I'd like a year of $40,000 or $50,000 and deep down, I think I can do it or I wouldn't be out here," Les said over a drained coke. "Even $15,00 or $20,000 would be niceifI can just break loose."

But when you've bowled nearly 30 years like Zikes, there's something besides money. It's also love for the game. And his greatest game thus far remains those FIQ tournaments . . . those eight gold medals.

"Money is a way of eating," Les said. "I guess there was more pressure on the U.S. team. Out here, you're only hurting yourself. Then, I represented the whole United States."

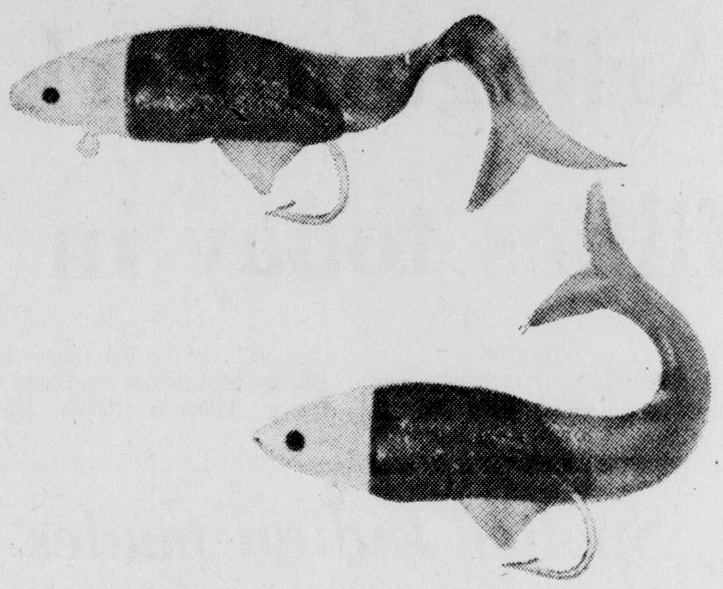
Industry appears recession-proof

New fishing tackle hits market



The Curve-tail Wig-Wag Minno

Outdoors
Jim Cook
Outdoor Editor
394-2300

Don't tell the American fishing tackle industry that the economy is down, that unemployment is up and that there are, presumably fewer dollars to spend on recreational equipment.

Manufacutrers from coast to coast came loaded for bear not to mention bass, billiards, basketball backboards and bows and arrows at the recently-concluded McCormick Place trade show.

The American Fishing Tackle Manufacturers Assn. showed up in force — About 6,500 strong — to exhibit their new products that will hit the sporting goods store shelves later this year.

The event was closed to the public, but even without its personal buying power on hand, Fred Fisherman has ensured an increase in tackle sales this season.

The new products waiting to be distributed to retail stores across the country will probably confirm that sales of fishing tackle are recession-proof.

The fishing pole industry, perhaps overgrown already, has found other manufacturers vying for anglers' bucks in the relatively infant field of graphite rods.

The only problem is that some of the newcomers are pawning off graphite "hybrids" or rods that are only partially graphite and mostly some other alloy.

The hybrids are easily less expensive and are apparently cutting heavily into the pure-graphite market.

Another major topic under discussion is talk of banning electronic fishing aids, but when questioned about the plausibility or concern of eliminating depth sounders, fish finders and the like from shelves, the spokesmen from Allied Sports Co., Vexilar Inc., Garcia Corp. and Ray Jefferson all expressed optimism when the bill was tabled in Minnesota until January 1977 and most agreed that the issue would be dropped or forgotten.

Long-wearing ceramic rod guides, meanwhile, are appearing on more and more models of fishing poles. The material is virtually frictionless, enabling longer casts and truer, more consistent retrieves.

The battle for attention in the lure, bait and book department has manufacturer's imaginations in high gear.

A new Wig Wag Minno, by Burke Fishing Lures, combines a life-like Minnow body with the popular feather-edged curved tail for realistic and exciting action. It comes in 5/8 ounce, 3/8 and 1/8 sizes and 10 colors.

The new Mr. X by Seneca Tackle Co., has a treble hook that attaches with a snap rather than permanently. Comes with an assortment of jigs and bucktails.

Li'l Tubby by Tubby Tackle Inc., is "the first lure to couple integrally a replaceable soft-plastic swimming tail with a hard-bait body," according to its manufacurer.

"It's a triple-threat combination — rattling fish call, wobbling crank-bait action and quivering, squirming Tub-tails."

Siberian Mini-mallow by Siberian Salmon Egg Co. is scented with cheese or garlic and has a built-in fish attractor that milks into the water.

Diamond Rattler by Strader Tackle Inc., features unique sound-producing characteristics including a touch sensation that appears and feels like real fish scale and a frog finish that is said to emit electromagnetic radiations similiar to live frog skin.

Sammy's Enterprises now produces worm oil in 10 flavors!

The Mepps Aglia Long by Sheldons' Inc. will have a color change this year — red on a rainbow scale. The Mepps people note that there is growing interest in the single hook, not only because of its snag resistance features, but because of ecological concerns. . . it's much easier to release a fish caught on a single hook.

Rudy Masson Products markets a Plug & Lure Tyer that makes a smaller, more uniform knot, eliminates hooks in the fingers and clothes and makes for speedy work between lure changes.

Berkley & Co. Inc. has introduced Trilene fishing line in high-visibility colors. "Fishermen can see it, but the fish can't," said the exhibitor. "It almost seems to disappear in water."

Taxidermy prices out of sight? E. Z. Mount Inc. has introduced a do-it-yourself mounting kit that can accommodate fish up to 30 pounds.

And, what I believe to be one of the most ingeniously designed products, is Bird's Inc. Side Surface Planer. Anyone who has fished from a charter in Lake Michigan has probably seen one.

The small block of wood attaches to the flat fishing line and carries a lure 150 feet or more off the side of a trolling boat. It almost completely antiquates the cumbersome outrigger poles.

So get ready, Fred Fisherman. The fishing tackle industry is alive, well and getting better.

Hypnotic achievements

The fabulous performances of East German girls at the World Swimming Championships recently held in Yugoslavia, according to coach Gerhard Hetz, were due largely to the fact that they trained in the nude. In competition, where they achieved seven world records and won ten of fourteen events, they hypnotized themselves into thinking they had no suits on.

Big ones still get away, but now they're on film

The farm pond bass engulfed the black and silver Norman's Little "N" and made a powerful run that pulled the 10-foot john boat several yards.

Finally the fish turned and began yielding to my spinning rod, but 10 feet from the boat it made another run in the opposite direction, its tail creating a miniature whirlpool on the surface.

Again the largemouth bass temporarily gave in to the pressure, allowing itself to be brought back to the boat, but the fight was far from over. Twice more it stripped the lightweight monofilament line from the reel. Finally, in a last effort, it dove under the boat.

As the tired fish rose again, I hefted it from the water with a thumb and finger hold on the lower lip. I quickly unhooked it, then released it back into the pond.

"That was a decent fish for this small pond," my fishing partner Bob Klimp said, smiling from his seat in the back of the boat. "It must have weighed about three-and-a-half pounds. I bet you hated to release it."

"Not really," I said, "the fun of releasing them is knowing they'll be there the next time around."

A short while later, Klimp stuck the hook into a two-pounder that inhaled a blue Mr. Twister worm. He also released the fish back to the pond.

Those weren't the only bass we caught in our trip to several Illinois farm ponds, but they all got the same reward for their fights — freedom.

More anglers throughout the country are beginning to realize the importance of releasing fish, especially on small bodies of water. In farm ponds, such as the ones we were fishing, heavy angling pressure can quickly eliminate the fish population.

In Illinois, most land is privately owned and anglers must have permission to fish private ponds just as they need permission to hunt such land. The greedy fisherman soon finds he is not welcome on any land, and besides making enemies of land owners, he destroys the sport for others.

Anglers can be valuable in preventing ponds from becoming overpopulated with fish. But care also must be taken to insure that small bodies of water retain a good breeding stock.

Therefore, if the land owner requests that all fish caught be released back into the pond, the angler should respect those wishes.

The catch and release system also is becoming more popular on large bodies of water. For many, simply catching fish is satisfaction enough, and large stringers aren't needed to prove one's ability.

Improved photography equipment also has played an important role in getting anglers to release more trophy fish. Easy to use cameras enable fishing companies to permanently record each other's trophies as soon as they are caught. The picture eliminates the need to keep the fish, and it can be released for the enjoyment of others.

Some lakes and ponds are difficult to get to, and never receive enough fishing pressure to damage fish populations. But others — especially those within reasonable driving distance of large metropolitan areas — often are heavily fished.

Anglers may never completely fish out a large lake, but they certainly can remove a major portion of the big fish population if they work at it. Southern impoundments hold up better to heavy fishing pressure because the year around growing season continually produces a stock of big fish.

However, in northern lakes, where the growing season is shorter, it takes a lot longer for fish to grow to lunker size and replace those caught.

Schedule teal season

A special teal season has been set for Illinois hunters Sept. 13-21.

Hunters will be allowed to take four blue-winged, green-winged or cinnamon teal during the nine-day season, and have eight in possession after opening day. Hunting hours are 7 a.m. to 4 p.m. daily.

"The special teal season is an outcome of the four waterfowl public hearings held in June," Tony Dean, director of the Department of Conservation said.

"Hunters at several of the meetings were outspoken in favor of the special season and at Carbondale, they were overwhelmingly in favor ot it."

Dean pointed out that teal usully migrate through Illinois before main waterfowl flocks and hunters often have no chance to harvest this species.

Waterfowlers are cautioned to sharpen their waterfowl identifiction during the early teal season. Hunters harvesting other species during the teal season face heavy court fines.

All hunters must possess a valid Illinois hunting license and a 1975 Federal Migratory Bird Hunting Stamp if 16 years of age or older.

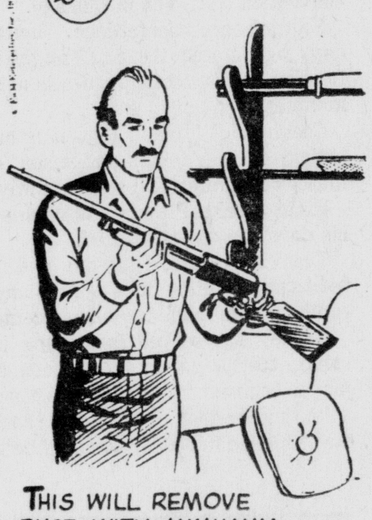
Mark Trail's OUTDOOR TIPS

CHECK YOUR STORED GUNS OCCASIONALLY TO BE SURE THEY REMAIN IN GOOD SHAPE

IF RUST HAS APPEARED ON THE SURFACE, RUB AREA WITH OIL, THEN GENTLY SCRUB WITH A SMALL BRASS BRUSH...



THIS WILL REMOVE RUST WITH MINIMUM DAMAGE TO THE FINISH

It's enough to drive some fishermen buggy

Years ago a fisherman who ventured into the swamps of the South, or onto the pine-fringed lakes of the northern states and Canada, took with him a small bottle of pine-tar oil and some high hopes that the sticky liquid would provide brief periods of freedom from insects.

If he was lucky, the smelly concoction worked for a while. More often, the angler spent his time between casts swatting at mosquitos, no-see-ums, black gnats, and an occasional deer-fly. And when things got too bad, he'd pour a little more oil into the palm of his hand and hastily spread it on face, neck, arms and hands.

Today, thankfully, things have changed. The bugs are still around, and in plentiful numbers, but the wizardry of chemical engineering has produced a group of insect repellents that really works. Still, it's not pleasant to have a mosquioto zipping around three inches from your ear waiting for the repellent to wear off so he can zoom in and hit the target.

Insect repellent sprays or oils should be applied to clothing rather than to your skin. Sweat soon breaks down the composition of the repellent and it quickly becomes ineffective. It will last much longer when applied to cloth, so a long-sleeved shirt, trousers, and a hat make sense when in mosquito country.

Boat campers should pitch their tent where the wind blows. Stay away from heavily-forested areas, and try to find a site where the prevailing breeze is from the water.

Campfire smoke also helps keep bugs away. Although no one likes to be in the direct path of smoke, you can locate the fire so smoke from it will drift through the campsite.

Spray the inside of your tent with insect repellent about 30 minutes before going to bed. This will rid it of any mosquitos that may have sneaked in and are waiting, and will provide relief most of the night.

Canoeists, anglers earn recognition

Two area canoeists paddled the length of Evanston's shoreline last week and won trophies in the Evanston Recreation Department's Third Annual Crosstown Canoe Race.

Fred Tennyson of Des Plaines combined talents with Mark Mayer of Naperville to win the Men's C-2 division while Kathy Erickson of Des Plaines joined forces with Cheryle Reichenbach of Oak Park to take down honors in the Women's C-2 division. Both were timed in approximately 30 minutes.

Racing events in competition cruisers and aluminum canoes were entered by 23 canoeists statewide. They began at South Boulevard Beach and paddled to Lighthouse Beach, a distance of approximately three miles.

Elsewhere, 11-year-old Herbert Snow of 33 N. Clyde in Palatine had his hands full of 24 pounds of chinook salmon last week while fishing 20 miles off Kenosha, Wis.

Captain Paul Disher of the Betty Ann pulled up all the other lines and followed the fish while young Snow battled the monster for 20 minutes.

WAYMOND BRYANT studies his playbook at the Lake Forest training camp as the Chicago Bears prepare for Saturday's exhibition game in Champaign against the St. Louis Cardinals. Bryant was the Bears' No. 1 draft choice in 1974.

Bryant forgets playing up to an image; second year pro is optimistic

by ED SAINSBURY

LAKE FOREST (UPI) —Waymond Bryant tried to play up to an image last year.

The jury will have to decide this year whether he failed.

Bryant was the Chicago Bears' No. 1 draft choice two years ago, and as a rookie he was thrown into the maelstrom promptly as the middle linebacker on a team which won four and lost 10 regular season games.

Bryant lost his starting position too under the now-deposed coach Abe Gibron; under new coach Jack Pardee he has won back the starting berth, and he expects to hold it.

"I have a better understanding of what's expected of me," Bryant said. "Last year, I had a pretty good understanding, but it was the first yar after Dick Butkus was gone, and the public was looking for me to fulfill his image.

"That was my biggest problem. It wasn't the coaching staff. It was the public. It bothered me all season."

Bryant, who called defensive signals for four years in college, was assigned the task of calling them for the Bears too, and that became a problem. This year the task of calling signals has been shifted to a 10-year veteran linebacker, Doug Buffone, and Bryant's only responsibilities are to call the offensive formation for the defensive unit and then try to make the tackle himself.

The changes, he believed, would make him a better player. "Last year, I was kind of hesitant at times," he said. "I reacted a little slowly. Now I can react much faster, and I have more confidence in my judgment.

"I wasn't emotional enough last year. I wasn't learning as fast as the coach wanted me to. I needed a slower start. After he replaced me with Don Rives, I still started the second half of most games.

"Now I don't have as much to learn and not calling the signals takes some of the burden off of me."

Bryant, who signed a three year contract with the Bears, but not a no cut, said the new training quarters were a help because "there's a lot of area here where you can get away, and you've got to be able to get away or it beats you down."

He also believed there was a better attitude on the current Bears. "Last year it was more an individual feeling, prove you're better than the guy opposite you. Now it's more a team feeling that we're not going to get beat.

"Everybody was trying hard in the preseason last year, but by the eighth or ninth game, it was an individual thing. Here I am coming from a winning school and I'm losing after four years of winning in college. I didn't like to lose, and this team doesn't."

If Bryant doesn't have to play up to an image, and the team plays for the team, maybe both will win.

Junior Bruins gain experience in Florida trip

The Buffalo Grove Junior Bruins gained some experience earlier this month that might lead to a higher finish in the 1976 American Softball Association sponsored Junior National 12-inch Slow Pitch Tournament in Florida.

The Junior Bruins, winners of the state meet, did well in the 20-team finals, placing fourth.

Playing against boys between the ages of 13 to 15, the Bruins captured their first two games in the double elemination tourney, dropped their third, won their fourth and then bowed out with an 8-5 setback in the fifth game.

In the opener, the Briins blanked the opposition, 2-0. Three consecutive hits in the third inning gave them all they needed for victory. Connecting were Kimo Leuzler, Mike Williams and Dave Rice. A double by Scott Campbell, son of Manager Bob Campbell, set up the second run. Mike Marshall singled him to third and Andy Farrissey drove him in with a sacrifice fly.

A three-run third inning helped the Bruins to their second win, 4-1. Leuszler tripled to start the uprising, followed up by three singles — Jeff Mack, Dave Wilhelm and Campbell. Marshall's triple in the fifth and Farrissey's sacrifice fly made it 4-1.

The Rockets tallied three runs in the first inning of the third game, eventually winning 10-2. The only Bruin runs came after Campbell's double as Marshall homered.

The Bruins scored the winning run in the fourth game on a freak play. Marshall singled and was forced by Farrissey. Leuszler singled and tried to stretch it into a double. As he did, Farrissey scored the winning run.

The state champs lost an 8-5 decision in their final tourney appearance. The game started off well as Campbell and Bob Raymo singled. Marshall doubled and Farrissey singled. In the seventh, the Bruins tried to rally with singles by Rice, Raymo and Marshall, but they fell three runs short.

Also on the roster besides the aforementioned players were Rick Gonzalez and Paul Venditti.

The Bruin coaches were Frank Marshall and Ray Williams.

Bulls set six-game schedule of exhibitions; two with Bucks

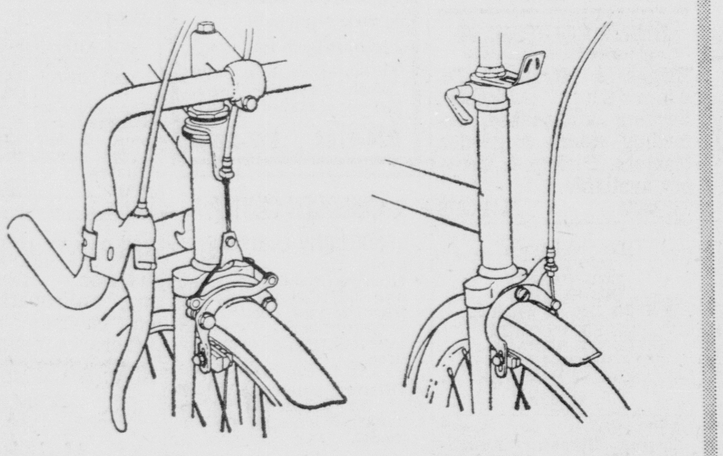
The Midwest Division Champion Chicago Bulls, this week, announced a six-game schedule of preseason games including a pair of contests with the Milwaukee Bucks, appearance in Madison Square Garden against the Atlantic Division Champion Boston Celtics and Central Division Titlist Washington Bullets and inter-league battles with Utah and Virginia of the American Basketball Association.

The Bulls will open training camp on Sept. 22, and begin preseason play Wednesday, Oct. 8 against the Milwaukee Bucks in Green Bay. Thursday, Oct. 9 they play the Boston Celtics in the first-game of a doubleheader in New York, and Saturday, Oct. 11 they face the Bullets in the lidlifter of another Madison Square Garden twin-bill.

Sunday, Oct. 12, they meet the Virginia Squires in Norfolk, Va., in the first meeting between the clubs. Two nights later, Oct. 14, they'll make their debut in Salt Lake City against the Utah Stars. The preseason schedule will conclude Sunday night Oct. 19 against the Bucks in Madison, Wis.

Head Coach Dick Motta said a 7th game has been tentatively scheduled with Milwaukee and he hopes to play the game in the Chicago area to provide the home fans with their first look at the 1975 edition of the BULLS.

The BULLS open defense of their Midwest title on Friday, Oct. 24 in Chicago Stadium against the Philadelphia 76ers. The game will mark the NBA debut of former ABA co-Most Valuable Player George McGinnis who will team with Billy Cunningham, Steve Mix, Doug Collins, Fred Carter and high school sensation Daryll Dawkins in the recamped 76ers lineup.



Center-pull Side-pull

Center-pull brakes offer best protection

(EDITOR'S NOTE: This is one in a series of features on bicycles.)

by RICHARD BALLANTINE

It is the nature of bicycling accidents that the bicycle more often runs into something than is run into. Good, well-adjusted brakes are vital, especially in traffic.

Pedal-operated coaster brakes are only for small children who lack the necessary strength to actuate hand levers. They are hard to control and can lock a wheel, causing a skid. They do not have actual stopping power.

Hand-operated caliper brakes are commonly used on less costly bikes. They are somewhat inconsistent in performance, although they will work if kept in constant adjustment.

Center-pull brakes are better because they pull from the center they work in balance, and are more even, precise and powerful. They are also more reliable and require less maintenance than side-pull brakes.

There are two types of rims, those for use with wire-on or "clincher" tires, and those for sew-up or tubular tires. Clincher tires are the best choice for all-around urban use, as they are heavier, more durable, and easiest to repair.

Tubular tires are lighter and offer less rolling resistance. They are common on big quality bikes. They also cost more and get punctures more easily.

Because the tube is sewn into the tire it is impractical to repair on the road, necessitating the carrying of whole spare tires (at $7 to $10 each) which must be glued to the rim. Clincher tires, available everywhere, are the only sensible choice.

Rims are either of aluminum alloy or steel. Less costly bikes feature steel rims, which are the most durable and the heaviest.

Better bikes feature aluminum alloy rims which are lighter but of course more fragile. Really brutal riding over bumpy terrain may require steel rims but I have found the alloy wheels are entirely satisfactory.

Hubs also come in steel or aluminum alloy. They may use conventional bolts, requiring the use of a wrench to remove the wheel, or quick-release levers which work instantly.

Legal Notices

Notice of Hearing

NOTICE IS HEREBY given that on the 11th day of September, 1975 at the hour of 8:00 P.M. there will be a public hearing at the Village Hall of Mount Prospect, 112 East Northwest Highway, concerning a petition for change to the Zoning Ordinance of the Village of Mount Prospect as follows:

Case No. ZBA-39-Z-75.

Loras Inc., (Petitioner), 7800 Milwaukee Ave., Niles, Ill., regarding the property abutting Westgate Road and Meadow Lane and also abutting the North property line of Mount Prospect Shopping Center requests a zoning classification change from R-X and B-1 to R3 so that subject property can be developed into a subdivision of 59 lots for 4 and 6 unit apartment buildings.

The legal description of the property follows:

PARCEL 1: The North 331.06 feet of the South 1653.37 feet of the East Half of the Southwest Quarter (Measured on the East line of said Tract) of Section 35, Township 42 North, Range 11, East of The Third Principal Meridian, in Cook County, Illinois.

PARCEL 2: Lots 15 and 16 in C.A. Goelz' Prospect Gardens, being a subdivision of the West Half of the West Half of the Southeast Quarter together with the East two thirds of the North three quarters of the Northeast Quarter of the Southwest Quarter of Section 35, Township 42 North, Range 11, East of the Third Principal Meridian, in Cook County, Illinois.

All persons interested in the above petition will be heard.

Dated at Mount Prospect, Illinois this 23rd day of August, 1975.

White House lets churches inside

World of religion
by David E. Anderson

After President Ford's honeymoon with the American people a year ago, a number of observers began to feel that the doors of Ford's promised "open administration" were swinging shut.

But one group that does share that view is the religious community.

"This President's style is very unusual — we've never had anything like it before," according to Mary Cooper of the National Council of Churches' Washington office.

IN JANUARY, Ford ended a virtual lock-out of mainline church leaders from access to the administration — brought about primarily from the churches' overwhelming opposition to the war in Vietnam — and met with the leadership of the 31 member National Council.

In the half year since that meeting, according to NCC officials, there have been more Ford invitations to the council than occurred during the whole of the previous decade.

In addition, Ford held an unprecedented meeting with a group of the nation's Roman Catholic hierarchy, led by Archbishop Joseph Bernardin of Cincinnati, president of the National Conference of Catholic bishops.

THE CATHOLICS, who originally approached the White House to make known their views on the world food crisis, wound up spending an hour with Ford and two Cabinet members on a wide range of issues including refugees, illegal aliens, parochial schools and abortion as well as the food issue.

Bernardin, at the time, characterized the meeting as "positive and cordial."

The refugee problem — the resettlement of Vietnamese who fled South Vietnam when the Thieu government collapsed last April — has been the catalyst for much of the administration-church interaction.

CHURCHES HAVE been the leading voluntary agencies in the resettlement process and thus have had to work closely with administration officials.

High level NCC officials have been invited to White House briefings on the refugee resettlement program and National Council president W. Sterling Cary has been named to Ford's advisory committee on refugees — something that would have been unheard of during the term of Richard Nixon.

The open door policy of the administration, however, does not mean that all is sweetness and light.

NCC officials make it clear White House or administration policies are frequently at odds with official church positions on issues.

THE REV. JOVELINO Ramos, assistant general secretary for the Commission on Justice, Liberation and Human Fulfillment, for example, told of one White House session where he was "glad I had the opportunity" to hear the administration's plan to solve the unemployment problem.

Then he added: "The truth of the matter, transparent in the answers to this question which was raised many times, is that the administration has no plan at all."

Obituaries

Ned Jedick

Funeral services will be Monday for Ned Jedick, 62, Arlington Heights, who died Thursday at Northwest Community Hospital, Arlington Heights.

A tool and die maker in the moulding industry for 30 years, he lived in Arlington Heights for the past five years.

He is survived by his wife Rose; two children, Robert (Karen) and Diane (Nicholas) Miljan; and two grandchildren, Michael and Roseann Miljan.

Funeral services will be at 11 a.m. Monday from Matz Funeral Home, 410 E. Rand Rd., Mount Prospect, to St. Sava Monestary, Libertyville. Memorial services will be at noon with the Rt. Rev. Nikolai D. Dazgich officiating. Burial is in St. Sava Cemetery.

5 Elk Grove Twp. buildings to be razed

The Metropolitan Sanitary District will raze five vacant farm buildings at an Elk Grove Township reservoir site that have been targets of vandalism and arson.

The sanitary district board voted Thursday to seek bids on the project, which is estimated to cost $24,000 including construction of a fence around the site.

The overflow reservoir will be built in conjunction with the O'Hare Water Reclamation Plant. The site is west of Elmhurst Road and south of the Northwest Tollway.

The Chicago South Shore & South Bend rolls down the middle of the street in Michigan City, Ind.

Riding the old South Shore

by MONICA WILCH PERIN

Few people would remember the inauspicious beginnings of the Chicago South Shore & South Bend R.R. in 1909, when electric railroads were at their heyday and the fastest way between two cities was by train.

Today the heyday is long over and the Chicago South Shore & South Bend line is alone, the last electric interurban railway operating in the Midwest. Vintage cars still rattle along the old Illinois-Central electric-line tracks carrying sleepy-eyed commuters and wide-eyed train nuts from Chicago to South Bend, with stops in more than two dozen small towns along the route.

For $6.10, round trip, you can spend a pleasant Saturday or Sunday riding a bit of history through the fields and countryside of Illinois and Indiana.

My husband, an incurable railroad buff, and I for sometime had planned to take a round trip on the line, one of two electric interurban lines operating in the country. The other is Philadelphia South Suburban Transportation Co.

SO AT NOON on a bright Sunday we boarded the train at the Randolph Street station in Chicago. We had already photographed the outside of the ancient-looking vehicle, including the pantograph — the train's trolley-like apparatus. Inside, a quaint upturned water jug lent an additional air of "yesteryear."

As the train set off a bearded, fortyish man came racing up the aisle with his young son to look down the tracks from the front door window, pointing out to the youngster where the old 12th Street station had been and other facts long lost to the average young Chicagoan.

From the start the Chicago Lake Shore & South Bend (the original name of the line) was beset by problems in an era when other interurbans were booming. By 1925 it had almost gone down the drain but was rescued by Chicago utilities magnate Samuel Insull, who also owned the Chicago North Shore and Milwaukee and the Chicago, Aurora and Elgin electric lines. He changed the name to Chicago South Shore & South Bend and replaced the old wooden cars with 68 new steel ones.

After Insull saved it, the line began making spectacular profits which continued until the Depression, when it went into receivership and was reorganized by Jay Samuel Hartt. The postwar commuter boom in the South Shore industrial communities helped the train to thrive once again. Passenger business was so good it provided half the company's revenues, with freight bringing in the other half.

EVEN WITH the onslaught of the automobile industry and superhighways, "the little train that could" was running 20 times a day between Chicago and South Bend as late as 1960 and 34 times to Gary.

Today the train travels 90 miles of track between Chicago and South Bend — 21 miles in Illinois, 69 in Indiana. In the 1940s some of the cars were lengthened and modernized, but you can still find a car with the original 1926 style.

After what seems like a short distance out of the Randolph Street station the train passes through historic Pullman, past the strangely gothic factory where the late railroad czar produced his famous Pullman sleeper cars.

On into Indiana, the interurban makes stops in East Chicago, Gary and Hammond, paralleling the toll road for a time, and then following the curve of Lake Michigan. The land outside the window becomes sandy and hilly as the train travels by the Indiana Dunes State Park.

It was along here that one of Amtrak's sleek, new turboliners whizzed by our half-century-old electric train, one of many moments of contrast on the trip.

THE HIGH POINT of this excursion into the past comes in Michigan City, Ind., where the train still passes through town on tracks in the middle of the street. It is the essence of the interurban-streetcar experience — a train that shares tree-lined avenues with automobiles, stops at red

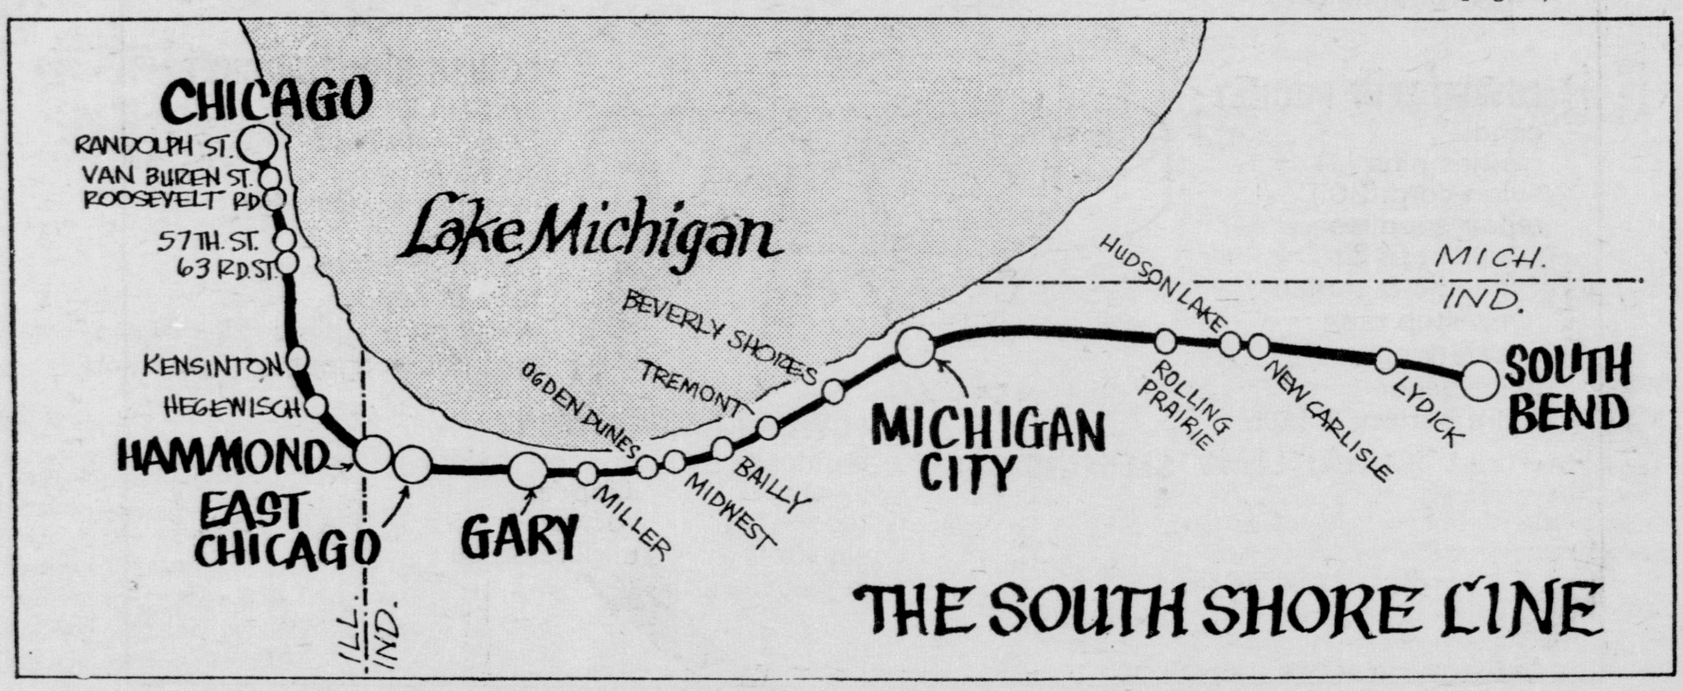
And it only costs three cents a mile

For a little more than three cents a mile you can travel the Chicago South Shore & South Bend R.R. from the Randolph Street station in Chicago to South Bend, Ind.

Round trip fare is $6.10; one way is $3.10. The train leaves the Randolph Street station Saturdays, Sundays and holidays at 7:58 a.m., 11:59 a.m., 4:05 p.m. and 5:58 p.m. About two hours and five minutes later the train arrives in South Bend.

The train leaves South Bend for Chicago at 10:35 a.m., 4:40 p.m. and 6:35 p.m. Saturdays, Sundays and holidays.



Backpacking — only if you're

by JOANN VAN WYE

The call of a soaring eagle, haunting screech of an owl, thunderous commotion of an approaching rapids echoing across unspoiled land are the sounds that lure more people into the wilderness each year.

It is a wilderness that can be reached only by foot or paddle and has not been ravaged by modern civilization. It is a wilderness that awakens one's senses and creates an awareness of one's environment and self.

Wilderness camping isn't easy. It is walking or paddling miles with heavy loads and making and breaking camp each day. Yet backpacking and canoeing are two of the fastest growing sports.

"It's the challenge of testing yourself — placing yourself in a situation of individual sport. It's being able to accomplish something that not everyone else has," says Bob Kaiser, backpacking manager for Aspen Ski and Sport stores who has been backpacking for 10 years.

The fascination of carrying the necessities on your back and being totally self-sufficient lured Michelle Fort of the Great Lakes Chapter of the Sierra Club into backpacking about three years ago. A camper all her life, she was anxious to get away from "who's got the marshmallows" and try something more primitive.

For Wayne Quillico of Des Plaines it was the chance "to identify with a more primitive way of life."

And for all it is an escape — an escape from city life and day-to-day routine. Kaiser estimates only 1 per cent of the population has been in a true wilderness area, but the number is growing.

"Young moderns," who Randy Fort, activities chairman of the Great Lakes Chapter of the Sierra Club, classifies as those in their 20s and 30s concerned with "in things" are leading the way. But he says more families backpack every year.

As the interest grows so does the number of wilderness survival classes. The classes not only teach people how to survive but also how to preserve the wilderness so others can enjoy it.

The Forts teach backpacking courses in the spring and summer, and winter camping and cross-country skiing courses in the winter at Central YMCA Community College, Chicago. Fort estimates classes can save the beginner one year's experience.

"I made so many mistakes when I was first starting and I don't want everyone to have to go through what I did," says Fort. "The important thing is to get people in the right frame of mind. People are so urbanized it is hard for them to use common sense."

Quillico offers canoe instruction at his new store, Pack and Paddle, Libertyville.

"We try to get people to the point where they understand what they are doing so they can do it with pleasure," Quillico says. While classes are recommended there also are a wide variety of books on wilderness camping.

Backpacking and canoeing do not offer much room for mistakes. Without proper know-how a trip can be miserable.

One danger in the wilderness is running up against a dangerous animal and although chances are minimal, even Kaiser admits he has been chased up a tree by a bear. The best protection is a clean camp site. Food containers should be burned or cleaned out after they are used and food should be kept tied in trees, Quillico advises.

Another danger to campers is hypothermia, an excessive loss of body heat caused by exertion and exposure to the Bringing along the wrong kind of food can ruin anyone's camping trip since nothing beats good food and plenty of it after a long day of walking or paddling through wilderness terrain.

The task of converting part of one's load into an appealing meal has been greatly simplified with advances in freeze-dried and dehydrated foods. Anything from the standard fare of meat and potatoes to beef stroganoff can be prepared in minutes by adding boiling water. For the gourmet camper the range of dishes is almost limitless with a little improvisation.

Food that is freeze dried retains more of its natural nutrients than dehydrated food but it is also very expensive. Before spending a lot of money on freeze-dried foods take a trip to the grocery store and check the shelves.

Supermarket foods ideal for wilderness camping include powdered fruit drinks; instant hot cereals, milk, soups, pudding, pancake and potatoes; mixes requiring only water; hard sausages and cheeses; dried fruits; nuts; candy; beans; rice, crackers and one-pot main meals with textured vegetable protein. Some wilderness areas will not allow food in nonburnable containers, so check the packages.

The average person can be fed on two pounds of freeze-dried food and 3,000 calories a day. A balanced diet of carbohydrates, protein and starches should be planned to provide necessary energy.

Suggested breakfasts include fruit or juice, cereal or pancakes and ham, bacon or eggs. Lunch is usually crackers, sausage and cheese along the trail. Dinners include soup, a main dish with meat and a starchy substance, vegetable and dessert.

Before setting off for the wilderness on your own, try one of the planned wilderness weekend outings where beginners can pick up basic skills. The Sierra Club, American Youth Hostels, Prairie State Canoeists, Chicago Whitewater Club and several camping stores conduct weekend trips.

The Midwest offers some of the finest wilderness areas for both backpackers and canoers. Favorite backpacking spots include Isle Royale National Park and Porcupine Mountain Wilderness State Park, both in Michigan. The Canadian Boundary Waters in northern Minnesota and Ontario and Sylvania Recreation Area in the Ottawa National Forest of Michigan are favorite spots for canoeists.

Spots closer to the Northwest suburbs for shorter trips include Shawnee National Forest in southern Illinois, the Wolf River in Wisconsin, the Sugar Creek area of Indiana, White Pines State Park in western Illinois and the Kettle Moraine area in Wisconsin.

Trail meals made easy

Meals need not be boring out on the wilderness trail. Some of the author's favorite recipes include:

GORP
A trail mix

One pound of M & Ms
One pound of white raisins
One pound of salted peanuts
Mix them together and you have a delicious snack for munching on the trail. If you substitute cashews for the peanuts you have lurp.

SPLIT PEA SOUP

1 cup finely ground split peas
3 cups cold water
2 tsp. dried salad mix
¼ cup ham-flavored texturized vegetable protein
Salt and pepper
Mix all ingredients together and bring to a boil for two to three minutes.

HEARTY LENTIL SOUP

1 cup lentils soaked for ½ hour
2½ cups water
1½ tbs. onion flakes
2 tsp. vegetable flakes
Salt and pepper
Mix the ingredients together and bring to a boil. Let simmer until the soup thickens.

BANNOCK

1 cup biscuit mix
¼ cup cold water (enough to knead the dough stiff)
Knead the dough and flatten into ½-inch round. Place in greased frying pan, brown on both sides and bake slowly for ½ hour.

As for cooking equipment, three nesting kettles with tops that can double as frying pans and plates are all that is needed. A small stove that can fit right inside the nesting kettles is a good idea since fires may be prohibited in wilderness areas if there has been a drought.

Tents today come in sizes perfect for backpacks

Good equipment a must for backpack enthusiasts

A wilderness trip, no matter how spectacular the scenery, can be sheer misery without the proper equipment.

Beginners have a tendency to load up on non-essential paraphernalia that only adds weight to the pack. The best advice on selecting equipment is to keep it light, comfortable and at a bare minimum.

Borrowing or renting is recommended for beginners until they get a feel for the different type of equipment that is available and the type of camping they enjoy.

Outfitting a person for the wilderness will cost between $150 and $500 depending on the type of camping planned. It is best to go to a store that specializes in wilderness equipment and has trained salesmen when buying equipment. Among those in the Northwest suburbs are Sports Chalet in the Randhurst Shopping Center, Mount Prospect, and Aspen Ski and Sport, in Arlington Heights.

THE NEED to shop around and talk to people who know about different types of equipment cannot be overemphasized. One friend walked into a popular sporting goods store looking for a backpacking stove and the salesman tried to sell him a two-burner Coleman stove. A fine stove but not for backpacking.

Boots are the most important piece of equipment, followed by sleeping bags and packs.

A quick meal

"You just can't do much walking without the proper boot," says Bob Kaiser, backpacking manager for Aspen Ski and Sport stores. "Backpackers are carrying 25 to 60 pounds and the pack creates an off-balance situation. If you do not have a boot that gives the proper support you can injure yourself and the foot will fatigue very quickly."

"The type of boot depends on the type of backpacking planned," Kaiser says, adding that good boots run between $40 and $65.

Things to consider when buying a boot are the purpose, construction materials, workmanship and most important — the fit.

MOST HIKING boots are about six inches tall, weigh between four and five pounds, have a lugged sole and leather top.

Kaiser's advice when buying boots is to look at the following:

Sole - most are Vibram and the lug should be well spaced and deep for better traction and to prevent particles from getting caught.

Riding the rails on the old South Shore lights and pulls up in front of a landmark station in the middle of downtown.

We had noticed several onlookers during the trip taking pictures of our train as it went by, but here in Michigan City, where the old interurban is still a daily sight, people working in their yards or walking on the sidewalks do not even look up as it goes by.

Beyond Michigan City, the countryside becomes serenely pastoral, and the neatly planted fields and old farmhouses make it easy to imagine one is riding this train back in its heyday.

Two hours after it leaves the Chicago station, the South Shore interurban pulls into South Bend, the end of the line. Unfortunately, the end of the line now is on the outskirts of town instead of downtown. The street tracks were pulled up there about five years ago and the new station built at the edge of town.

THERE, THE faithful and efficient interurban must leave its passengers to take buses or taxis to their final destinations. On a Sunday, the only choice is a taxi, which cost us nearly the equivalent of a whole one-way train fare for a 10-minute ride into town.

With 2½ hours until the next train departs for Chicago — or 4½ hours until the last train back — what is there to do in South Bend? One possibility is to visit Notre Dame University.

The park-like grounds with two lakes are an attractive setting for a summer stroll, and a visitor information booth provides a guide to the many historic as well as artistic contemporary buildings on the campus.

Other points of interest in South Bend: a newly created downtown mall, canoeing on the St. Joseph River and South Bend's now-famous Bicentennial fireplugs painted to look like American Revolution soldiers.

One must take care, however, in these days of modern transportation, to allow plenty of time for taking a bus or taxi back to the train station. If you should miss the train due to tardiness on the part of these other vehicles, the Greyhound Bus will bring you back to Chicago — for twice the fare of the train.

BUT THE train's low fare is reportedly taking its toll. Commuters still use the line as do out-of-town Loop shoppers and baseball fans. But other electric trains have gone out of business because people would rather drive from city to city than take a train. In the past the freight carried by the line has made up some of the deficit but officials do not know how long that can last.

"I don't think the South Shore line has set any date for going out of business or thinks of it that way," says R. D. Bunton, manager of passenger traffic.

He said the Illinois Dept. of Transportation and the Regional Transportation Authority have given the railroad some money but it is not enough.

"The line cannot continually absorb the type of deficits the passenger service faces. The public and elected officials will have to determine if the line is necessary and should be preserved."

If they decide not to preserve the line and it dies, another chapter of Chicago's history will end.

Postal Service cited with issue

A block of four 10-cent commemorative stamps will be released Sept. 3, marking the 200th anniversary of the U.S. Postal Service.

Designed by James L. Womer of Philadelphia, which is the first day city, the stamps contrast the old and new methods of transporting the mail. They will be printed 50 stamps to a pane with six plate numbers.

Requests for first day cancellations should go to USPS Bicentennial Stamps, Postmaster, Philadelphia, Pa. 19101 and include the proper remittance, which is the cost of the stamps to be affixed.

Collectors desiring single stamps should mark lightly in pencil in the upper right hand corner of the envelope which stamp they want affixed. Collectors wanting the block of four affixed should remember to place their address low and well to the left of the envelope.

CACHETED COVERS from the Women's Hall of Fame, franked with International Women's Year stamp, are 75 cents or three for $2. Last week's column erroneously reported three for $1. The address is Women's Hall of Fame Inc., P.O. Box 335, Seneca Falls, N.Y. 13148.

Stamp notes
by Bernadine M. Rechner

FIRST DAY cancellations for the U.S. 10-cent D.W. Griffith commemorative stamp issued May 27 totaled 424,167.

Down sleeping bags good, but don't get them wet

Shank - steel, wood and nylon shanks are the choices.

Welt - Norwegian and Goodyear welt construction are the best for attaching the sole to the upper part of the boot.

Upper part of boot - full grain cowhide in one-piece is best.

Good hiking boots can be resoled and last for years with proper care.

Down-filled mummy bags are the most popular sleeping bags for wilderness campers. They offer the most insulation for a given amount of weight, compress to less volume, take up less floor space and fit closer to the body to let in less cold air. The disadvantages of down bags are the cost and loss of all insulation if they get wet.

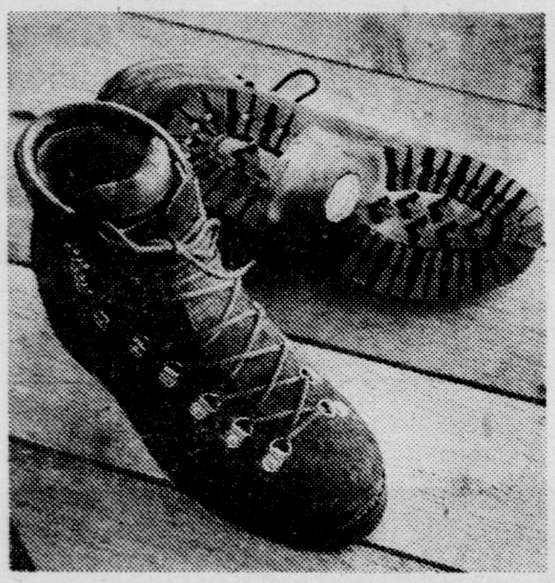
Synthetic bags are becoming more popular because they can be purchased at half the cost of a down bag in a comparable comfort range, Kaiser says.

CONSTRUCTION FACTORS to consider in selecting a sleeping bag are:

- Zippers should have a draft tube to prevent air from coming in.
- Seams for the baffles should not go directly through both layers of nylon because cold air can get in. Slant tube construction is most popular.
- The nylon should not be waterproof because body moisture must be able to escape.

As with most equipment, individual needs and preferences are the most important factors in choosing a pack.

Kaiser says to look at the way it fits the body. "Most of the weight should be supported by the hips. You don't want a pack where you are carrying the weight on your shoulders," he says.



Sturdy boots are a necessity

Soft backs (no exterior metal frame) have become very popular. They have the advantage over a regular pack of holding the weight close to the body to minimize weight shifting, which throws a person off balance. They also have a greater capacity and enable the person to carry heavier loads. A big disadvantage is there is no room between the pack and the body to allow for ventilation.

Old pros get together to solve special case

by VERNON SCOTT

HOLLYWOOD (UPI) — Buddy Ebsen dozed in the car's passenger seat while Bill Conrad scowled behind the wheel during preparations for a scene for a combined "Cannon" and "Barnaby Jones" television show.

It was sweltering on the stage at Goldwyn studios. The two old pros had little to say to each other.

When director Michael Caffey called for action both performers came to life.

A PROCESS screen behind the automobile flashed a moving picture of a huge truck bearing down on them. Stagehands with two-by-fours rocked the car realistically.

Without any direction from Caffey, Ebsen pulled a revolver from its holster and leaned out the window. Conrad struggled with the steering wheel, watching the truck through a rear-view mirror.

The first take was perfect. The stars took a breather.

"WE DON'T need much direction," Ebsen said sleepily. "The man just yells action and turns us loose.

"But I want to say up front that Bill taught me all I know about the detective business."

"HELL YES," Conrad agreed.

"He was a guest on the first episode of 'Barnaby,'" Buddy explained. "In one scene I tried to put a pistol in my belt and couldn't do it right. I finally had to ask Bill how it was done."

Conrad chuckled. "I've been trying to get him to teach me to dance ever since."

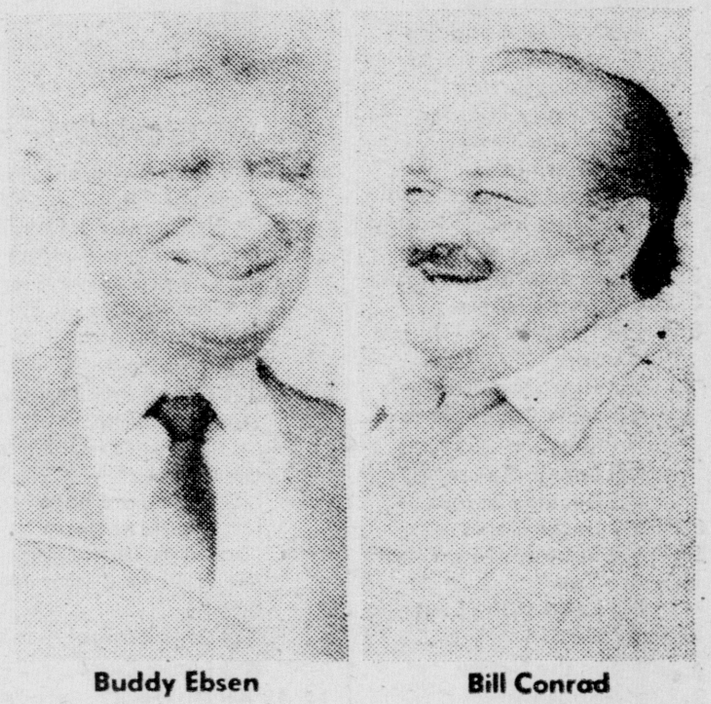
Both men are pleased to be working together again. Quinn Martin, who produces both "Barnaby Jones" and "Cannon," was asked by CBS to come up with something exciting for the new season.

"WE DECIDED to combine the two best detectives on the air to solve a multinational corporate crime," Martin said.

"So Cannon and Barnaby will solve the case together on the second 'Cannon' show of the season and the first 'Barnaby' episode. The story will air on a Tuesday 'Cannon' show and conclude on 'Barnaby' Friday night.

"It's an interesting concept. The actors are terrific together. These two old pros rise to the occasion. They try to top one another in every scene.

"The idea of the two detectives is so good I'd like to make it an annual event."



Buddy Ebsen — Bill Conrad

TO KEEP peace among crew members, the first half of the two-hour episode was manned by "Cannon" personnel, the second by "Barnaby" stagehands and technicians.

Passersby on Los Angeles locations for the show were puzzled to see equipment trucks in the street advertising "Cannon" but seeing Buddy Ebsen in front of the cameras, and vice versa.

Martin divided the chores and jobs as equitably as possible. His stars followed suit.

"Last week when we were doing the 'Cannon' part of the show Bill was the first one through the door," Ebsen said, grinning.

"HE'D SAY, 'C'mon, Barnaby.' This week it's my turn to be first and say, 'C'mon, Cannon.'"

Conrad nodded agreement. "I gave him all the difficult lines when my guys were running the show. For the second half Buddy stuck me with the long, complicated speeches. We know one another's schtick."

It was suggested the pair of private eyes work up a song and dance act. Tall, slender Buddy agreed but the portly Conrad scowled again.

"You ever see a 300-pound canary?" he asked.

Michael Landon

Please tell me something about Michael Landon. I heard that "Little House on the Prairie" was being cancelled. How could this be true?

C.H.

The story you heard about "Little House on the Prairie" being cancelled is totally unfounded. The NBC hit will be back in the fall, again on Wednesday nights.

Michael Landon is now into producing, directing and writing, as well as acting.

After graduating from high school, Mike attended the University of Southern California on a track scholarship. An injury cut his javelin career short, and when he lost his scholarship he turned to acting.

One of his early acting jobs was in a movie which has become a late Friday night TV favorite, "I Was a Teenage Werewolf." After several other films and bit parts on TV, he landed the role of "Little Joe" on "Bonanza" which kept him busy for 14 years.

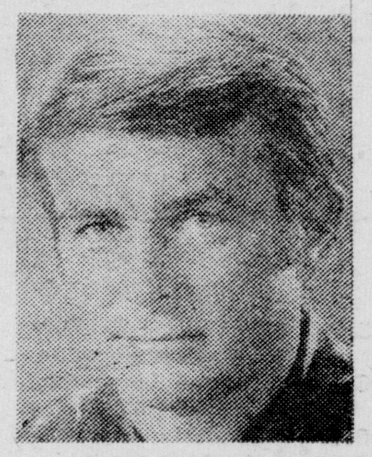
I get Roger Smith and Robert Conrad mixed up. Which one starred in "77 Sunset Strip?"

A.B.

Roger Smith starred with Efrem Zimbalist, Jr., Ed (Kookie) Byrnes and Jaqueline Beer in "77 Sunset Strip."



Robert Conrad

He is now married to Ann-Margret and is her personal manager.

Robert Conrad starred in "Hawaiian Eye" with Anthony Eisley, Connie Stevens and Poncie Ponce.

His last series was "Assignment: Vienna."

11 Movies of the Golden Era
"Dracula" Made in 1922, the first screen version of the classic horror tale is still the scariest of them all! Called by a noted critic of the day "a chilly blast of doomsday" it evokes a magnificent spirit of male violence and impending doom. The grim scenes of the vampire stalking his victims in the deepening shadows of the night have never been equalled for sheer visual terror. German film director, F.W. Murnau, directed this acknowledged masterpiece.

Shelby Lyman on chess

One of the finest young players in the world and a potential world champion is Lubomir Ljubojevic of Yugoslavia. This grandmaster of chess catapulted himself into world renown in the 1973 interzonals in Leningrad, when as an unheralded dark-horse, he grabbed an early lead. He subsequently fizzled out in that competition, but carried the better part of that inspiration into the next year of play (1974), when he won three out of four international tournaments.

Ljubojevic is a highly original attacking player, who surprises again and again with unique ingenuity. He senses attacking possibilities, which are first unanticipated, and then uncomprehended by his opponents. The result for them is often a debacle.

THOUGH I HAD been apprised of his ability, it was nevertheless an eye opener for me to see his most recent efforts from the 1975 Las Palmas Tournament, which he won ahead of two former world champions, Tal and Petrosian.

His play was incredible!

Take for example his game with Pomar. Lubomir, it seems, overreached himself with bewildering and furious innovations. (See Diagram 1). He is behind in material (two rooks for a queen and knight), but has some dangerous threats.

Pomar played 1. . . . N-Q4? and after 2. R-N7 check, K-B1; 3. R-N1, P(KB3); 4. RxKRP, Q-K4?; 5. R-N8 check!, black resigned. (5. . . . QxR loses to 6. R-N8 check, etc.)

In another game, lightning in the form of L. Ljubojevic struck again. In Diagram 2 (against Olafsson), Lubomir played 1. B-KB3! and black is lost! (For example, if 1. . . . R-R2; 2. PxP, NxP; and 3. B-N7 wins the exchange.)

Olafsson elected to play 1. . . . N-K4, but after 2. BxN, BxB; 3. PxP, R-R2; 4. PxP . . . , white was two pawns ahead with an easy win.

IN THE THIRD and last game we will consider, Ljubojevic annihilates Henrique Mecking of Brazil.

The position after white's 21st move especially deserves consideration. (Play through the score.) Black is in a dilemma. His rook is under attack, but if he moves it to N2 or B2, he faces a terrific assault beginning with 1. B-R5.

As it was played white won easily. Our young Yugoslav hero deserves great admiration for presenting his opponents with such difficult problems.

He adds a new dimension to contemporary chess.

Win at bridge

by Oswald and James Jacoby

Aces were made to take kings. At least they can take kings when the occasion arises. Furthermore, they should do just that most of the time.

South's four-heart opening was supersound. Even though North had dealt and passed there might well be a slam in the cards.

Actually, the way the cards lay there was no play for the game. This didn't keep South from making it with a little help from West.

He won the club lead and played three rounds of trumps. East discarded a couple of clubs. Then South led his king of diamonds. West looked the card over with disdain and played low. A second diamond was led and West had to take his ace. That left him on lead with no lead to make. A spade would set up South's king, or a club would give a trick to dummy's ace.

If West had thought things out thoroughly he would have seen that the correct play would be to take the ace of diamonds and lead a diamond right back.

This play would succeed against the actual holding or if South held the doubleton king-queen of diamonds. It would lose only if South held king-queen-small.
